MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 10.—(P)—Preliminary steps for establishment of a centralized cotton marketing agency, government controlled, were taken here today at a cotton congress, attended by three members of the federal farm board and 150 leading representatives of the cotton industry.

The sessions were executive and the only official word concerning the deliberations was the announcement by Alexander Legge, chairman of the farm board, that "it seems our program will go through right away; little or no opposition has been manifested so far."

Sixteen cotton co-operative associations were represented. They spent most of the morning discussing the present marketing ills of the cotton industry and were in a receptive mood to hear the board's outline of the plan which would revolutionize the cotton business.

The proposed organization, patterned after the grain marketing agency, would embrace all local and state co-operatives and would be controlled by the government. The government would be expected to furnish money for establishment of the agency, estimated at amounts varying from $10,000,000 to $40,000,000. The agency, it was indicated, eventually would be sold to the cotton growers in form of government stock. Its policies would be directed by the farm board.

Besides Mr. Legge, Carl Williams, cotton's representative on the board, and James C. Stone, vice-chairman of the board, were present. The sessions will be continued tomorrow.

Mr. Williams, cotton region member of the federal farm board, said tonight that a proposal made by five members of the senate in a telegram to him today, that loans on cotton be gradually increased to the basis of 20 cents a pound, will be given careful consideration. Mr. Williams said in pointing out that investigation as to its feasibility will have to be made before a reply could be given.

Alexander Legge, chairman of the board, who is in Memphis with board members to attend a conference of representatives of the cotton producing industry, joined in the assurance.

Under the present plan the loan basis on cotton is approximately 16 cents.

LOWDEN ADDRESSES
FARM FEDERATION.
CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(P)—The equalization fee, long the stumbling block in the way of farm relief, was brought to the attention of the American Farm Bureau Federation today by its chief advocate, former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois. He departed from a prepared address to state the views that led him to bolt the republican convention in Kansas City in 1928.

The militant farm leader also took issue with some speakers who preceded him with statements that the condition of the farmer had changed for the better.

While urging the farmers to join co-operatives and support the farm board in its efforts under the present agricultural marketing act, he added that "if it shall be found later that it is necessary to adopt some plan by which the non-member producer of any commodity may be made to share equitably with the members the expenses which the co-operative has incurred, we shall keep on striving until we shall secure the adoption of such a plan."

Fisher Will Name
Joseph R. Grundy
U.S. Senator Today

Man Who Attacked Small and "Backward" States To Get Vare's Seat;
Caraway Angers Governor.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 10.—(P)—Announcement of the appointment of Joseph R. Grundy as junior senator from Pennsylvania tomorrow morning by Governor John S. Fisher appeared certain tonight with the return of the governor to the capital.

Mr. Fisher attended the funeral this afternoon at Lancaster of the late Representative W. W. Griest.

Designation of Mr. Grundy to fill the seat denied Vare, according to word from official sources, would be made in spite of the attack made on both the likely appointee and the governor by Senator Caraway on the floor of the senate today.

Governor Fisher refused comment on the Caraway statement. Persons close to the administration said, however, that the incident served to strengthen the determination of Mr. Fisher to name whom he chooses to represent Pennsylvania and Mr. Grundy was his choice.

Supporters of Grundy said that chances that Grundy may not accept the post were eliminated by the charge of the Arkansas senator that Grundy, if named would be appointed "by the people who bought and paid for the office of the governor of Pennsylvania now occupies."

Both the governor and Mr. Grundy were pictured by their friends as antagonized by the statement.

The general belief that formal announcement of the election of Mr. Grundy would be made was shared by Senator David A. Reed, who headed the Pennsylvania congressional delegation at the Griest funeral. Senator Reed said that it was his understanding that the Grundy appointment would be made by the governor at that time.

The governor and Vare met today outside of the church at Lancaster after the Griest services and shook hands.

REPORT ON GRUNDY
MADE TO SENATE.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(P)—Reporting on the "lobbying activities" of Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania, to the senate, Chairman Caraway, of the lobby committee, called attention today to the possibility of Grundy's appointment to the senate in the place of the vanished William S. Vare.

Caraway took note of recent references by Pennsylvania republicans to himself and Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, as "old women," and referred, in reply to Governor Fisher, to Grundy as "old woman."

"Mr. Grundy states that he is undecided whether he will accept a seat in this body or not, which is in fact a statement that he is not yet decided," Mr. Grundy said, "but the governor of Pennsylvania, not by the people who bought and paid for the office of the governor of Pennsylvania now occupies."

SUGAR LOBBYISTS EMPLOY HOOVER'S PERSONAL LAWYER

Letters Disclose Shattuck Chosen by Cuba Company Chiefly Because of White House Entree.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(P)—A close friendship with President Hoover was assigned today before the senate lobby committee as one of the reasons for the employment of Edwin P. Shattuck by the Cuba Company to work for a low sugar duty in the pending tariff bill.

This testimony was given by H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Company, who said the friendship between the two men "would cause the president to be sympathetic to the views advocated by Shattuck."

Lakin testified that the employment of Shattuck had been proposed by George A. Zabriski, of New York, president of the United States Sugar Association, and that Shattuck was Hoover's personal attorney.

The intimate friendship between Shattuck and the president was discussed in a letter Lakin wrote to General Enoch Crowder, former American ambassador to Cuba, which was read to the lobby committee by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana.

The letter, obtained by a committee investigator from Lakin's files, said Shattuck is "perhaps Hoover's closest friend" and that "he is the personal attorney for Hoover and all his family."

"I think that I have persuaded him to undertake a confidential mission," the letter added, "first to convince Hoover and, secondly, to work on the committees and members of congress on behalf of Cuba."

Another letter, written by Lakin to F. B. Adams, of New York, said Shattuck was employed "chiefly because of his relation with Hoover and Shattuck."

"He has seen Hoover within the White House."

EUROPEAN STORMS
BEGIN TO ABATE;
166 KNOWN DEAD

Worst Disturbance in Century Leaves London Flooded After Taking Terrific Toll of Shipping

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(United News).—The worst storm series in a century abated somewhat today, leaving floods throughout the British Isles and western Europe and a death toll of at least 166 on land and sea.

Isolated SOS calls continued to arrive, and preparations were made to search for small unreported fishing craft which might have survived the battering of mountainous waves with crews still alive. The French weather bureau predicted the tempest would renew and last two or three days more along the Atlantic coast.

The death list, still incomplete: Great Britain, 56. France, 58. Spain, 25. Netherlands, 15. Portugal, 4. Denmark, 3. Germany, 3. Belgium, 2.

Italian steamers in French waters suffered most heavily in the final days of gales. The tramp steamer Gasconne arrived at La Rochelle with six of the crew of the Italian cargo ship Alfiri, which sank off the coast. Thirty men were reported to have gone down with the Alfiri.

The French tugboat Iroise, which covered itself with snow to rescue after rescue, was reported towing to Brest the Italian government steamer Leonardo da Vinci and expected to reach Brest tomorrow night if another tug could arrive and give assistance.

The Leonardo da Vinci was bearing $70,000,000 worth of famous Botticelli, Raphael, Titian and other art masterpieces for exhibition here. It was expected to arrive here today.

Greatest Tragedy
In Films' History
Takes Ten Lives

Blaze in Pathe Sound Studio at New York Turns Happy Revue Into Stark Drama.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(United News).—Four little girls died a horrible death today just as they were within some 10 minutes of attaining the dream of every chorus girl—the dream of appearing in the movies.

With them died six men who had come with them to the Pathe Sound Film Studios on toward the end of Park avenue, New York, to play the music for their dancing or to grind the cameras and turn out the film which would go to make another Pathe production.

In just a few ticks of the clock the film was turned, however, from gay comedy with lilting music and lighted girls dancing merrily to probably the most tragic disaster in the history of American motion picture production.

Fire, caused perhaps by a spark from some of the complicated electric apparatus, was responsible. Flames swept through the studio and in less time than it takes to tell it, ten people were burned to death, 20 were injured, and everything that was in the place excepting a supply of film locked in fireproof safes in the basement was destroyed.

There had gathered there this morning an extra large company for the filming of Harry Delmar's miniature review. It included two sets of chorus girls. One was the pony ballet of pretty, little girls picked from the best of the New York choruses. The other was a group of statuesque show girls, picked with equal care. Eddie Elkins and his dozen piece jazz orchestra were there to play the music.

Then there were the comedians, the technicians, directors, and all the cameramen and electricians. There were about 30 girls and 50 men in all. Because it was a gala day an unusual number of officials of the Pathe company had dropped in, while in the cutting and projection rooms other workers were busy at their tasks.

The first number to be recorded was to have been the pony ballet, dancing and singing to the music of Elkins' orchestra. The girls had been called from their dressing room and were gathered on the stage, while the musicians gave final toots at their saxophones and tightened the head of the big brass drum. In a minute the director would shout "camera," the music would begin, the girls would start to dance and sing and the dreams of the girls of the pony ballet that sometime they would appear in the movies, would be reality.

But just then an electrician saw a peculiar flash and one of the dancers on the stage cried "fire." That was the end of the dream.

A stage hand grabbed a fire extinguisher and turned it towards the great, black velvet, back drop from around the edges of which the flames were licking out towards the fluffly bands of ruffles and feathers which made up the ballet girls' costumes. The girls screamed and drew away. The big curtain belled out as if reaching for them. Then there was a puff which shook the place and flames enveloped curtain and much of the stage.

At the morgue people gathered to attempt identification of the dead. The task was difficult for the bodies, which only this morning had been ready to dance so lightly, were now burned almost beyond recognition. It was late afternoon before the last had been identified.

Most of the injured were cared for at the Harlem hospital, where tonight it was said that most of the patients were entirely out of danger.

The dead were: Katherine Porter, aged 16; Betty Byrne, Jola Sparks, Edna Burford, Joseph Bischoff, Al Kramer, Robert Musman, Jack Quinn, Ernest Wilson, Charles Koebler.

All the dead lived in New York except Koebler, who resided at Leonia, New Jersey.

JOHNSON'S SISTER DOUBTS CONFESSION

Monroe, Louisiana Friend of Prisoner, Admits That Atlantan Told Him He Had Killed Man.

Police announced Tuesday night that Elwell L. Hardegree, cigarmaker, had been identified positively as the companion of Professor Alexander Hamilton Johnson, shortly before the Hartwell school teacher was slain here on the night of June 29, and whose killing Hardegree admitted to detectives and reporters for The Constitution Monday night.

Late Tuesday afternoon Hardegree was lined up in a row of a dozen other prisoners and detectives, and a negro, Bossiey Bailey, 30 years old, janitor in an apartment house at 663 West Peachtree street, walked straight up to him and pointed him out as the man he says he saw with Johnson in a grocery on Linden avenue an hour or two before the time Johnson is believed to have met his death.

Story Is Believed.

The negro witness was questioned by Detectives John W. Lowe and E. N. Ellis.

Bailey told them, Lowe and Ellis said, that he saw Johnson and Hardegree on Linden avenue on the night of Tuesday. They were arguing and cursing each other and indications were that both had been drinking, the detectives quoted the negro as saying.

Bailey, Lowe and Ellis added, was one of the witnesses who reported that he was unable to identify J. W. Wike as Johnson's companion. Wike is in the Fulton tower under indictment for murder in connection with Johnson's death.

Asserting his belief in the truth of the confession of Hardegree that he killed Professor Johnson here on the night of June 29, Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole announced Tuesday afternoon that a number of the witnesses who had seen Johnson with his companion and slayer shortly before he was killed would view Hardegree at police headquarters.

"I have read all the statements made by Hardegree and talked with him at length and his confession fits in to every detail," Chief Poole said. "We will have the case ready for presentation to the grand jury Friday."

Further corroboration of the story told Monday night by Hardegree came

Generous Atlanta Slow In Aiding 'Opportunities'

By Ben Cooper.

Good people, this won't do!

Funds necessary for the rehabilitation of Atlanta's 10 neediest families during 1930 are not coming in as fast as they should. Three opportunities have been announced, and the flow of cash into the treasury is pitifully slender . . . thinner than the poor soup that furnishes a major portion of the daily menu of the opportunity families.

True, one opportunity is provided for. But the response from the general public is not as spontaneous and as generous as it should be in this day of prosperity and good times.

The Family Welfare Society, which selected the 10 neediest and most worthy families, and The Constitution are grateful on behalf of these poor people that Opportunity No. 2 has been subscribed in whole by the Fox theater, and that automobiles donated by D. C. Black will be auctioned off for cash to apply on others. But the shower of cash donations has been no trouble at all for the postoffice department to handle.

Deaths reported from 78 cities in the United States during the period ending November 30 increased 1,150 over the corresponding annum. The increase in Atlanta was among the highest reported in the south. Fatalities in the 78 cities within the city limits or outside in 1929 were 8,528, the department of commerce report said, as compared with 7,369 in 1928. The percentage increase was 15.

CITIZEN OF FUTURE OR PARASITE, WHICH?

Embittered against a world he considers cruel, another gang leader may come forth from Atlanta's slums to rob and pillage the ones who denied him and his the right to happiness and comfort. God grant that it may not be so! If you will take the trouble to brave squalor and filth in Charles' neighborhood, he will tell you . . . pitifully, pleadingly, beseechingly . . . of his efforts to help his family. He will tell you also of the failures that have dogged his tracks.

Charles will tell you how he sold papers and candy through the summer, earning enough to buy shoes and school supplies for himself and Roddy, his younger brother.

77 Auto Accident Fatalities Here Is Behind Only New Orleans in Southern States.

Atlanta ranked next to New Orleans, which leads the south, in number of deaths from automobile accidents for 52 weeks ending November 30, according to figures given out by the United States department of commerce Tuesday. Atlanta had 77, an increase of 25 over the preceding year, while New Orleans had 105, an increase of 15 over the preceding year. Washington, D. C., reported a decrease of 9, or 74 for the year, against 83 for the previous year.

New School Budget Calls For $600,000 More Funds

Council will be asked to appropriate in excess of $600,000 more for operation and maintenance of the Atlanta public school system next year than was allocated for that purpose this year, it developed Tuesday at the regular monthly meeting of the board of education.

A total of $3,606,705.59 will be sought as a minimum, including $250,000 for capital outlay, if a budget as outlined by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, becomes effective.

This is more than one-third the entire revenue of the city, and is exclusive of interest and sinking fund on outstanding bonds and does not include an appropriation of $125,000 for free text books, which council sets up each year.

While the actual budget as prepared by the administrative department calls for expenditure of only $3,416,705.59 another $250,000 is to be added in a supplementary budget now in process of preparation, Mr. Sutton said.

In offering the budget for consideration of the board, the school superintendent claimed that it is the most conservative and economical ever submitted and that it is the least possible amount on which the schools can be operated with any degree of efficiency and effectiveness.

A total of $3,063,509.07 would be set up for salaries of teachers and other employees of the system and $353,196.52 for all other expenses of the department, if the budget is approved.

Appropriations requested by the school department for 1930 are grouped in the following divisions: General control, $85,456.72; instructional service, $2,762,114.57; operation of plant, $216,028.10; maintenance, $7,840; debt service, $5,000; capital outlay, $118,751.15; auxiliary agencies, $17,256.45; total, $3,416,705.59.

Oyster Industry Lagging, Twitty Urges Expansion

Georgia has the possibility of expanding its oyster industry beyond the development in either Virginia or Maryland, in the estimation of Peter S. Twitty, state commissioner of game and fisheries, who returned this week from a tour of the oyster regions of those two states.

"Potentially, Georgia's oyster beds have more wealth than those of either of the two states," he said.

The Georgia oyster beds, he said, are unique in their supply of seed oysters.

"People up there told me they would buy seed oysters from us," he said, "but, of course, I wouldn't think of suggesting that we do that. It only goes to show we have something they have not. Their beds are all of spawners and other full-grown oysters. They have no sea there to replenish their supply as fast as it is depleted, but we have. There are millions and millions of 'coon' or seed oysters on the Georgia coast. All we would have to do would be to take these and replant them in beds where they would develop. Our long oyster line affords us the advantage of a constant supply of these 'coons' for transplanting."

The commissioner declared that Georgia's present oyster output, which does not exceed $250,000 annually, when it should run into the millions.

THREE BADLY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Dorothy Powell, 9, Seriously Injured by Alleged Hit-and-Run Driver.

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in a series of automobile accidents in Atlanta Tuesday afternoon.

Dorothy Powell, 9, of 280 East Fair street, was seriously injured early Tuesday afternoon when she was struck by an automobile driven by an unidentified white man, who failed to stop after the accident, according to police reports.

The accident occurred in front of Fair Street school, near Kelly street, as the child was en route to her home from school. The car which struck her was going west on Fair street. The child was taken to the residence and placed under care of a physician.

The accident was reported by Call Officers V. H. Whitley and T. C. Watkins, who were assigned to investigate it. The license number of the machine was obtained, the officers reported.

Child Badly Hurt.

Geneva Conner, 8, of 470 Fowler street, received fractures of both legs and severe cuts and bruises early Tuesday afternoon, when she was struck by an automobile driven by B. Ward, of 220 Wellington street, according to report by Call Officers W. D. Wallace and C. W. Cartwright.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Luckie street and Meridian avenue. Ward posted a $500 bond for his appearance in recorder's court to answer reckless driving charges. The child was taken to Grady hospital.

Woman Run Down.

Mrs. Owen Johnson, of 1013 West Peachtree street, was injured early Tuesday afternoon when she was struck by a truck driven by Clay Wallace, of 907 Hampton street, who attempted to cross Peachtree street at Tenth avenue, according to report of Patrolman J. H. Smith. She was removed to her residence.

Wallace posted bond of $500 on reckless driving charges, and will be tried in recorder's court December 30.

GEORG FASSNACHT EYES EVERY DETAIL OF PASSION PLAY

George Fassnacht, Sr., producer of the Feiburg Players, and producer of the highly dramatic role of "Judas," is one of the most unusual actor-managers in the entire history of the drama.

Of course, the Passion Play itself is hardly to be classed as a play in the customary sense of the word. Nevertheless it is the most powerful drama ever enacted upon a stage. Its atmosphere, however, is more like that of a great church, or cathedral, than of the theater. Its audiences do not applaud, but rather are silent as the sacred story is unfolded in telling scenes and compelling lines from the stage.

Fassnacht is the type of actor-manager who, although filling one of the hardest imaginable roles at every performance, yet insists on personally supervising every tiny detail of the production.

On Monday night, before the curtain rose on the first of the week of performances now being given at the auditorium, he was discovered backstage testing and trying the lighting effects to be employed in the play. Then he would run to help the stage hands place the first scene set, or stop for a word or two of comment upon a troupe of extra people drilling in a corner.

"He always like that," said Alfred E. Wolff, his personal representative. "He was down at the auditorium this morning as the first load of scenery arrived and he was on the train to see that same load properly removed from the cars. He leaves nothing to others, takes nothing on chance, but, as far as possible, sees himself that every detail for every performance is perfect."

Mr. Fassnacht talks English with a strong accent. He has played the role of "Judas" for more than twenty-five years, in accordance with the custom of the Feiburg Players, who devote their lives to the interpretation of a single role in the great play and who, when they grow too old, pass the role on to their sons. Mr. Fassnacht is the eighth generation of his family in the play.

"VAGABOND KING" OFFERS POPULAR MATINEE TODAY

George Wintz has brought a wonderful musical show to Atlanta in "The Vagabond King," one that fully merits the great attendance that is attracting at the Erlanger theater, where it will remain throughout the current week, with matinees today and Saturday.

The production of "The Vagabond King" is as near perfect as money and directing ability can make it.

The forceful personality and the rich and vibrant voice of Paul Keast as the Vagabond King for a Day; the charm and beauty, as well as the sweetness of voice displayed by Vida Hanna as Lady Marion Stuart; the dash and verve of Marion Stuart as Huguette; the tremendous force and power of the great singing choruses that are thrilling local audiences at every performance—all go to make up one of the best of musical comedy offerings seen here in many a day.

There is to be a popular-price matinee at the Erlanger this afternoon, which will probably find the house crowded to its capacity. Seats for all performances may be had at the Erlanger box office and at Phillips & Crew Piano Company.

HANDWRITING TEST WILL BE APPLIED TO FRANKLIN BOY

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Dec. 10. (AP)—The youth who says he is the Connie Franklin, who was alleged to have been tortured and slain by men held on first degree murder charges, walked about Mountain View today with curious groups of people following him as he and attorneys for the five men sought to add to evidence that will positively identify him as the farm hand supposedly slain.

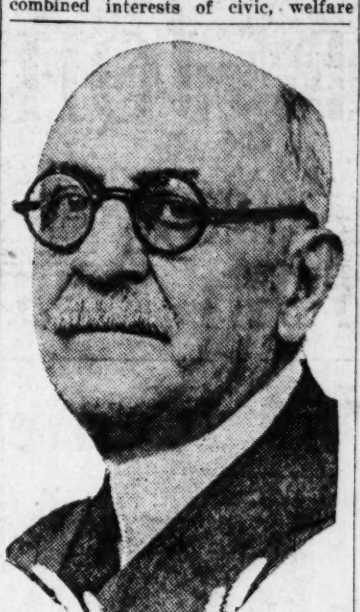

Letters written by a Connie Franklin, which bears resemblance to the handwriting of the youth posing as Franklin, were expected by attorneys to be the strongest link in their evidence to positively identify the youth. Franklin wrote from the St. James community to H. S. Harris at Humphrey, where he was found last Saturday, requesting the return of a suitcase. This letter was postmarked on a date prior to Franklin's disappearance last March. The other letter was to Elmer Wingo at Morrilton, one of several persons there who first reported that Franklin was not dead.

Georgia Cripples' Society Planned By Edgar Allen

Plans for establishing a state society for cripples to be affiliated with the International Society for Crippled Children and to represent the combined interests of civic, welfare and health organizations and public authorities, are being formulated, it was disclosed Tuesday upon a visit to Atlanta by Edgar F. Allen, president of the international society.

Mr. Allen, who left for Jacksonville Tuesday night to continue his organization work in Florida, has been the leading figure in the cripple-aid movement for nearly two decades. Mr. Allen is a resident of Ellyria, a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio. The present world-wide movement in the behalf of children handicapped in life by physical misfortunes, was given its initial impetus 22 years ago when Mr. Allen led a movement to establish a hospital in Ellyria following an accident in which 67 people were maimed and 16, including his own child, killed.

Subsequently, Mr. Allen became interested in the possibilities of curing crippled children and after close investigation, established a hospital for cripples in Ohio. The scope of the movement continued to take on an ever-increasing aspect, Mr. Allen explained. The necessity of state support became apparent, and the present Ohio system, whereby state aid was lined with private philanthropy, was developed and became a prototype for similar developments throughout the country and in many other nations. The state provided the maintenance support, thereby encouraging private philanthropy in the investments for buildings and equipment, Mr. Allen pointed out.

The International Society for Crippled Children was given recognition and support at its first world's conference held at Geneva, Switzerland, last July. At this conference Dr. Theodore Toepel, of Atlanta, represented Georgia. Dr. Toepel and Eugene A. Brooks spent Monday and Tuesday with the president of the international society in interviewing local leaders of civic and welfare movements for the purpose of getting a co-ordinated state society formed that will affiliate with the international in its program of curative and preventive aid for cripples.

Georgia produces an annual crop of about 7,500 to 10,000 cripples, Mr. Allen said. This figure can be vastly reduced and will be in a period of few years, Mr. Allen predicted.

FLORIDA BAPTISTS DECREASE IN 1929; GAIN SINCE 1919

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 10. (AP)—A decrease of 54 Baptist churches with a total membership loss of 4,000 since his report was made last year was indicated by Dr. C. M. Brittain, secretary-treasurer of the state board of missions, in his annual report today.

Dr. Brittain at the same time reported a 10-year increase of 122 churches and an addition of 57,327 members since 1919.

Men Who Block Power Development Flayed by Georgian

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. (AP)—Representative Edwards, of Georgia, a member of the house rivers and harbors committee, today told the rivers and harbors congress that he was unable to understand our national backwardness in the development of power and navigation.

"Of the possible total of 55,000,000 to 65,000,000 horsepower, only about 12,000,000 has been developed," he said. "Of approximately 25,000 miles of possible inland waterways, less than 7,000 miles have been developed and much of these 7,000 miles remain unimproved."

He denounced as "demagogues" those who have retarded waterway development.

"It has cost us vastly more not to go forward than it would have cost us to complete the whole program years ago," he said.

Representative Edwards said waterways should have been developed before the railways and airways and urged "completing the circle" so all points of the United States could be in contact through a waterways system.

CONGRESSMAN NAMED IN MAIL FRAUD CASE

Zihlman, of Maryland, Indicted, Will Not Claim Immunity.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. (AP)—Indictments charging use of the mails to defraud were returned by the District of Columbia grand jury today against Representative Zihlman, of Maryland; Daniel R. Crissinger, former comptroller of currency, and five other officials of the F. H. Smith Company, a brokerage house.

Zihlman, who as chairman of the District of Columbia committee of the house directs the group which controls all legislation affecting the capital in that branch of congress, said that he was confident of vindication.

"I have no thought of evading through process of law by claiming immunity as a member of congress," he said.

"I was conscious of no wrongdoing on the part of the company and did not knowingly lend myself to any complicity in wrongdoing. When I hear the charges I will be prepared to answer them, and until such time I prefer not to discuss them."

In its report after a lengthy inquiry the grand jury said the defendants "placed letters, circulars and other advertising matter in the United States mails and did publish therein, among other things, false and fraudulent articles and representations concerning the value of the Hamilton hotel and value of the capital stock of the Properties Investment Corporation and other bonds of like nature to secure investments to persons to be defrauded."

Other officials of the company indicted were G. Bryan Pitts, chairman of the board; Samuel J. Henry, president; C. Elbert Anadale, secretary; John H. Edwards, Jr., vice president, and Henry C. Maddux, of the Hamilton Hotel Company.

The grand jury outlined the manner in which it said bonds were issued by the company, and brought Zihlman's name in as a member of the board of directors which authorized the actions. The Smith Company recently removed its headquarters from Washington to New York, where Crissinger was notified today of the indictment. He declined to comment.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Merchants of Atlanta Report That Season Is Far Advanced.

Everybody's getting ready for Santa Claus.

A look into any of the stores will dispel any idea that Christmas this year will be any different from Christmas any other year.

There is an improvement, however, merchants agree. The people are shopping earlier in the day and earlier in the season.

Many of the stores begin to fill up just as soon as the doors are opened, and it's never very far along in the day before many of them are crowded.

"The crowds this year have been marvelous," one merchant said. None was found who didn't say the volume of business this year hadn't been greater than last, and some reported that they were doing a capacity business.

In addition retail merchants state that they are looking for a steady increase from day to day right on up to Christmas.

Getting down to actual contact, one store reports that at least 20,000 persons entered it on Monday. According to the management of the store, all of the shoppers seem to have money to spend for their immediate wants, and all of them are glad to spend it.

The increase in business has caused some of the stores to increase their sales forces more than they do ordinarily at the Christmas season, one reporting that it has 10 per cent more employees than ever before.

According to the reports, people are practicing thrift by spending wisely instead of not buying. Instead of purchasing trinkets and rubbish, this year they are turning to good merchandise, useful as well as ornamental.

The attitude among the merchants seems to be that the stores failing to get their share of the business are stores that don't give the public what it wants, or else are failing to let the public know what they have.

The merchants point out that the people of Atlanta know values, and when a store offers values, the people buy, which might be interpreted to mean, as one merchant expressed it, "If the stores do their part, they won't have any kick coming."

GREEK REPUBLIC PRESIDENT QUILTS; IN BAD HEALTH

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 10.—(AP)—President Admiral Kondouriotis, who was appointed chief executive of the Greek republic December 4, 1926, resigned today.

Premier Venizelos visited the president this morning, but failed to persuade him to withdraw his resignation.

The president said that his advanced age (he is 74) and weakened health prevented him from continuing in office.

Premier Venizelos later called a cabinet meeting, inviting the party leaders, but finally adjourned it until Thursday.

Parliament will meet on Saturday to elect a new president, and President Zaimis of the senate will take over the duties of president of the republic until the new chief of the state is in office.

REV. O. P. GILBERT NAMED TO EDIT CHRISTIAN INDEX

Announcement of the appointment of the Rev. O. P. Gilbert, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Brunswick, by the executive committee of the Georgia Baptist convention as editor of the Christian Index, official organ of the convention, was announced Tuesday. Dr. Gilbert succeeds the Rev. Louis D. Newton. Mr. Gilbert has held pastorates in Americus and Augusta. He is a native of Alabama, and a graduate of Mercer University.

Established more than 100 years ago the Christian Index, grew in prestige and power during the ten years' editorship of Mr. Newton. His recent acceptance of the Druid Hills Baptist church pastorate entailed so many duties that he was forced to resign as editor of the publication.

BANK HEAD SEEKS CHRISTMAS FUNDS FOR DEPOSITORS

A. R. Mobley, state superintendent of banks, Tuesday asked liquidating agents of his department to raise as much money as possible to be paid before Christmas to depositors having claims against banks now being liquidated. He also asked that special efforts be made to make final adjustments in all processes by January 1. Mr. Mobley declared that Georgia's general banking outlook is showing improvement. There has been but one failure since last June, and in that instance depositors received 40 per cent within 50 days of the bank's closing. The superintendent said he saw a healthy sign in mergers and absorptions, and that the formation of larger banks should be looked upon by the public as a further safeguard and a greater convenience.

A bright-eyed baby boy was at Grady hospital Tuesday night, alone, except for doctors and nurses, its identity unknown.

The child was taken to the hospital Monday afternoon by Call Officers M. D. Cartwright and R. L. Williams after it had been turned over to her by a negro woman, Annie Hill, who lives in the rear of 364 South Pryor street.

The negro said that early Monday afternoon a near-dressed white woman asked her to care for the child while she did some shopping. When the hours passed and the woman failed to return the negro told police of the incident.

LADY ASTOR BESTS LABORITE IN TILT ON COMMONS FLOOR

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(United Press.)—Lady Astor, former Virginia, maintained her reputation for quick wit in the house of commons today.

After the chairman had called her to order several times for irrelevance when she criticized the government's unemployment policy, George Buchanan, laborite, asked if it were not customary to force a member to sit down when called to order three times.

"I don't mind being rebuked by you, Mr. Chairman," Lady Astor retorted, "but when I'm rebuked by a man who has been carried out feet foremost I do object."

MYSTERY VEILS TEACHER'S DEATH IN HER HOME

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Unable to piece together the jumbled bits of facts and fancies surrounding the slaying of Miss Cordelia Gummer-shimer, school-teacher beaten to death in her apartment, authorities tonight were at a standstill in their search for the slayer and his equally elusive motive.

The only suspect, Dr. Floyd D. Leach, eccentric dentist, was released this afternoon, forestalling habeas corpus proceedings by Stanley Doyle, Chicago lawyer and American Legion enthusiast. Leach, a former soldier, had been seen in the neighborhood of the teacher's home Saturday night, the night of the slaying.

WISCONSIN WET FLAYS 'DRY' STATE DRINKING

Schafer Defends Washington, Cites Atlanta Among 'Heavy Drinkers.'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Representative Schafer squeezed some anti-prohibition talk through a parliamentary loophole during the house debate today on the interior department appropriations bill.

The lusty wet from Wisconsin had failed to obtain unanimous consent to make his remarks, so today he made some references to treatment of the Indians by way of leading up to a charge that the dry laws had "caused an increase in the intemperate use of alcoholic beverages."

The Wisconsin republican flailed members of congress who have recently attacked prohibition enforcement in the District of Columbia. He said President Hoover had been correct in his message to congress saying that conditions in the capital were better than in most cities.

"Statesmen in the national legislative body," he continued, would be rendering better service to the country if they would cease their crusading for the Anti-Saloon League policies and spend a portion of their time which they devote to attacking the nation's capital, in considering the effects of prohibition generally throughout the country and particularly in their own states."

Schafer presented statistics to show that in Atlanta, Ga.; Omaha, Neb., and Charleston, S. C. there were large increases in arrests of intoxicated drivers of automobiles as compared with 1919.

The supreme court of South Carolina, he cited, was considering a case in which a jury drank the evidence in a prohibition trial.

will join Wednesday night in celebrating the 50th birthday of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, and will hear a program given in Atlanta and sent over a network of long distance wires.

The program in Atlanta will be given at the Woman's Club and similar programs will be rendered at the eight state headquarters cities. At 9 o'clock the various cities will be connected and the big audience will hear an address by President Ben S. Read and selections by the Bell Telephone orchestra.

KENTUCKY MAN KILLS ANOTHER WITH HAND AX

PADUCAH, Ky., Dec. 10.—(AP)—I. H. Carroll, 66, basket maker, last night beat to death with a hand ax John H. Pemmons, whom Carroll said entered his home, smashed a glass in the door and threatened to kill him. Police said Carroll told them that Pemmons broke into his home and threatened to kill him. Carroll pulled a pistol, according to his story, and fired two shots at Pemmons, both of which went wild. The two then grappled, Carroll said, both trying to obtain possession of a hand ax lying near by.

WOMAN HELD ON BOND FOR ROME ROBBERY

Stepfather Also Held as Material Witness in Payroll Holdup.

ROME, Ga., Dec. 10.—(P)—Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan, alias Brooks, was held in $10,000 bond by Judge S. Peace today on a charge of participating in the robbery last July of the Townsend Lumber Company payroll.

Ralph Pulse, the woman's stepfather, was held under $1,000 bond as a material witness after his testimony at the preliminary hearing today resulted in the charge against Mrs. Sullivan.

Pulse testified he had seen his stepdaughter in Rome July 9 and 10, two days after the payroll robbery, and said she had lived at his home some time last summer. Pulse accompanied Special Officer O. E. Jarman to Crown Point, Ind., where the woman was arrested, to return her to Rome. E. C. Hicks, one of the two company employees who were robbed of the payroll, testified Mrs. Sullivan was the woman who drove an automobile past the car in which he was riding a few minutes before the robbery occurred.

Mrs. Sullivan denied any knowledge of the holdup and said she had not been in the south since her marriage in 1928.

JAMES COBB, 17, ATLANTAN, FOUND DEAD ON FLAT CAR

MACON, Ga., Dec. 10.—(P)—James Cobb, 17, of Atlanta, was found dead on a flatcar of a Georgia Southern & Florida freight train arriving here early today.

A coroner's jury attributed death to accidental injuries, advancing the theory that he had fallen asleep on the car, loaded with telephone poles, and that the timber shifted while the train was in motion, crushing him to death.

Efforts made here to communicate with relatives or persons in Atlanta who knew him have proved futile thus far.

MRS. C. B. WALKER, CENTRAL GEORGIA PIONEER, SUCCUMBS

Mrs. Walker was the widow of Samuel Walker, of Milledgeville, who was a captain of a former company of the Baldwin Blues and former mayor of that city. At his death, in 1896, she moved to Macon.

Mrs. Walker's only child, the first Mrs. John W. Shubulster, died six years ago. One sister, six nephews and nine nieces are her only relatives.

MOTORCADE TO ROME HEARS HIGHWAY PLANS

ROME, Ga., Dec. 10.—(P)—Prediction that Rome's hopes for completion of the Rome-Chatanooga and the Rome-Alabama state line highways would see fruition in 1930 was made here today by members of the Atlanta-Rome motorcade, sponsored by The Atlanta Journal to celebrate completion of paving on the Atlanta-Rome route.

The delegation of some 250 prominent Atlantans stopped at Shaver college and at the Hotel General Forrest for luncheon, and heard speakers predict the completion of the Rome-Chatanooga link of the highway system, and the road from Rome to the Alabama state line, next year. The completion of the road from Rome eastward to Gadsden, Ala., would give Rome a paved highway direct to Birmingham, Ala.

John R. Phillips and Stanley S. Bennett, members of the state highway commission, both said they were confident the roads from Rome to Gadsden and Chattanooga would be paved during 1930.

Mr. Holder, former chairman of the state highway commission, told of work already done on the roads, and said he was particularly pleased at the completion of the Rome-Atlanta link of the state highway system because the contracts for the work had been let during his administration.

Mr. Holder praised Colonel Sam Tate, his successor as head of the state highway commission, as "a big man in every way" and said that Georgia "should be confident that the state highway program would go forward under Colonel Tate."

Mr. Bennett, whose term expires January 30, 1930, commended W. C. Venable, of Moultrie, who will succeed him.

G. E. Maddox, chairman of the democratic state executive committee, acted as toastmaster at the luncheon.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CORN CUP IS WON BY R. A. WILDER

In the award of the Southern Railway system's corn cup, designating the south's leading corn-growers for 1929, which was made on Tuesday, first prize, carrying possession of the trophy for one year, went to R. A. Wilder, of Wilkes county, North Carolina; second to J. C. Cress, of Rowan county, North Carolina, and third to J. S. Shackelford, of Spaulding county, Georgia. The cup is now held by C. N. Long, of Bremen, Ga., who won it last year.

The handsome silver trophy won by Wilder is offered by the Southern to the grower of the best ten ears of corn produced in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee or Kentucky in any county. It is usually the object of keen competition between growers who have won first prizes at leading fairs held in these states, thus making them eligible to qualify in this contest.

The award was made by T. R. Bryant, assistant director of co-operative extension, Lexington, Ky.; J. L. Phil Campbell, director of extension, Athens, Ga., and W. C. Lasseter, editor, The Progressive Farmer, Birmingham, Ala.

BEWARE OF DIETS WITHOUT BULK

People are more careful than ever before about diet. They diet to clear complexions. They avoid certain foods to stay thin. They eat others to get fat. But many are running a serious danger because they are missing the "roughage" or "bulk" foods that every person must have to keep well.

As a result, constipation gets in its deadly work. Headaches, listlessness, circled eyes are only the first symptoms. In the end, constipation ruins health, wrecks beauty and may cause serious disease.

Don't neglect your daily roughage. That is nature's rule. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply it. A healthful cereal to eat each day. To use in cooked dishes or to serve with milk or cream. To mix with other cereals.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—to prevent it. Two tablespoonsful daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It is 100% bran. Doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Served by hotels, restaurants, dining cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MACON JURY QUASHES CHARGES OF PERJURY

State Witness in Mrs. Powers Case Is Set at Liberty.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 10.—(P)—A grand jury here today freed Troy S. Martin, 31, of Forsyth, of perjury charges in connection with the trial of Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Powers, 70, and Earl Manchester, 20, who now are under sentences of death for murder of James W. Parks, young Atlanta printer, last May.

The charges were preferred by James W. Schell, attorney for Manchester. The grand jury not only returned "no bills," but declared that prosecution of the complaint by Attorney Schell "was unfounded and malicious." Costs of investigating the charges are automatically assessed against the prosecution, and it was stated that Mr. Schell would be presented the bill when its total was ascertained.

Mrs. Powers, formerly keeper of a boarding house here where Parks lived, was charged by the state with having employed Manchester to kill Parks in order to collect $7,000 double indemnity insurance. Manchester confessed to the killing at his trial, and said he had been promised $1,000 of the insurance when it was collected. Mrs. Powers, at her trial, repudiated a confession police said she previously had made and asserted complete innocence.

Martin, one of the state's star witnesses in both trials, said Mrs. Powers once had sought to employ him to do away with Parks, but that he had declined. Attorney Schell asserted and sought to prove that Martin had never conversed with either Manchester or Mrs. Powers prior to Parks' death, and it was at his instigation Martin was arrested.

Perjury in capital cases is an offense punishable by death under Georgia law.

2 HELD IN "DOPE" CASE Henderson and Wife Charged With Possession of Morphine.

Harry Henderson and his wife were bound over to the grand jury Tuesday on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act, following a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith, when local agents testified that the defendants were found in possession of 23 grains of morphine. Bond for Henderson was set at $2,000, and for his wife at $1,000.

HARRIS PROTESTS AGAINST PECAN RATE INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(P)—Protest was voiced to the interstate commerce commission today by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, against any increase in freight rates on pecans or watermelons. He acted upon reports that an increase was contemplated by the railroads but was assured that no application has been filed for it with the commission.

The Georgian also asked the department of commerce to investigate the source of pecans which were being shipped into Georgia from Texas to determine whether they were raised in Texas or Mexico.

Harris said any increase in the freight rates would destroy the pecan and watermelon industry of Georgia.

SENTENCES PASSED ON YOUTHS CAUGHT IN RAID ON STILL

Sentences were passed Tuesday by Judge Jesse M. Wood, of criminal court of Atlanta, on twenty defendants arrested in a recent still raid, while sentence on the third defendant was held up pending investigation of his case by the court.

C. H. Russell, on a plea of guilty, was sentenced to serve 12 months. Robert Pohl and Frank Willis were sentenced to serve 12 months. Pohl was ordered to serve a 12 months suspended sentence which was revoked. Willis, who is about 16 years old, was held for further investigation with a view of putting him on probation because of his youth, it was said. The three defendants were arrested in a raid on a house on McCaslin street by county police.

GAS CO. CONSIDERING NEW SCALE OF RATES

No Statement Made Pending Investigation of Effect of Commission Order.

The question of a possible appeal from the order of the Georgia public service commission fixing a natural gas rate for Atlanta and vicinity was under consideration by officials of the Atlanta Gas Light Company Tuesday, but was held in abeyance pending the accumulation of more exact data on the effect of the new rates on the revenues.

Both R. C. Hoffman, vice president, and M. L. Kane, general manager, were reticent concerning the matter. They admitted that several alternative courses were under consideration, but were unwilling to disclose their attitudes at the present time.

An appeal from the Georgia public service commission, it is understood, lies to the Fulton superior court and to the Georgia court of appeals, depending on the class of question to be reviewed. A rehearing might also be asked of the commission.

The new rate established by the commission cuts the rate proposed by the gas company substantially. The

JUNKERS COMPANY TO SUE HENRY FORD FOR INFRINGEMENT

DESSAU, Germany, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The Junkers management today indicated that it would take some legal proceedings against the Ford Airplane Company for alleged infringement of Junkers' patents in the construction of all metal airplanes.

Controversy over the patents came to a head with the arrival of a Ford all-metal airplane at Seville for the Compania Lineas Areas Subbionicas. The German company took action to obtain an injunction as soon as this plane reached a Spanish port, and it was learned here from Seville that the Spanish court there had placed an interim embargo on the plane.

"So long as Ford did not export planes of this type we refrained for reasons of expediency from taking legal proceedings," said a statement issued by the Junkers management today, "but now that it has become clear Ford intends to push the sale of this type in Europe we are compelled to change our attitude."

THREE BUSINESS BLOCKS IN ATHENS DAMAGED BY FIRE

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Fire which originated in a defective fuse in the candy kitchen of R. F. Christian this afternoon damaged three business blocks and caused damage estimated at $35,000 before it was brought under control.

Starting in the candy kitchen, the flames quickly spread to the adjoining stores. The grocery store owned by H. D. Marbut and the Athens Fish Market and Fish and Oyster Company were considerably damaged.

Fire Chief Lester said the loss was partially covered by insurance.

Journalist Describes Life Of English Couple on $2,500

BY ALFRED P. PERRY.

In the mind of the average man the political organizations and social institutions of foreign countries stir but languid interest.

His sympathies are human. He feels with the poet that "the proper study of mankind is man." The trials and tribulations of humble mortals like himself; their struggles with the tax collector, what they pay for their shoes, whether they can keep a car and how often they "go a bust" on a theater or a party—these are the facts which really rouse his curiosity.

Such readers of The Constitution, therefore, may be interested to compare their own budgets with that of a young married couple trying to live pleasantly in London on a grand total income of $2,500 a year.

Let us assume that our two friends have married with the blessing of their respective families. This has been expressed in practical manner by gifts which enable the young couple to start life with sufficient furniture to equip the modest flat that is all they can afford. And a check from a crusty old bachelor uncle just covers a two weeks' honeymoon in Paris, so that they can start "all square" on their return.

Battle With Collector.

The first battle to be waged is with the income tax collector. After filling innumerable forms and writing endless letters, the new husband finally convinces this sceptical inquisitor that he is well and truly married and thus entitled to substantial reductions of his tax assessment.

Finally, his contribution to the upkeep of his country is set at $130 and he is now free to try to raise a family on the remainder.

The next problem for our couple is to keep a roof over their heads. After a search which started with their engagement six months before, they have found an unfurnished apartment composed of two rooms, a tiny kitchen and a dilapidated bathroom. It will boast a gas cooker, but it will have no central heating and will be innocent of such devices as an ice-box, or refrigerator. Moreover, the general layout will be designed so as to demand the maximum of labor with the minimum of result. If it is in a tolerably convenient part of London, this little gem will cost $500 a year for rent. Of course, they can go out to the suburbs, where they will get better lodging for the same money. But then fares to and from work will cost more, so the price has to be paid in the end.

$840 for Food.

Food will be the next item. Healthy young people cannot eat for less than $8 a week, no money set aside $830 for that essential expenditure. Then the gas cooker, electric light, telephone and the little coal or gas fires become quickly soiled. So the weekly laundry bill will be between $2 and $3, which means $130 a year on that account. A certain amount of washing probably will be done by the "char," a lady of masculine proportions and truculent bearing who may be persuaded to "do" for our couple at the rate of 20 cents an hour.

The wife will rightly insist upon having her in for a couple of hours on three days a week at least, so that she may do the heavier cleaning of the house. On that basis she will account for $65 in the course of the year, without reckoning how many cups may "come away in her hands." The lighter everyday tasks, such as washing up and making beds, will be the privilege of the young mistress of the house, for the master will be too busy in the morning trying to catch his train to have any time for drying dishes. But in the evening and on holidays he will give a hand unless he is a lout.

Other Necessary Expenses.

Other necessary household expenses will include $25 a year for cleaning materials and small replacements; $75 for a $5,000 life insurance, and $50 for an annual appropriation for the doctor and the dentist.

But our pair still have to clothe themselves and move about the town. Being members of the much abused "middle class" they will wish to appear decently clad in public. The husband can scarcely achieve this ideal without allowing himself one new suit or overcoat a year, which will cost him $30; a pair of shoes, $5; and a few shirts, socks and such-like garments with a small appropriation for pressing, cleaning and mending which cannot well be less than $25.

The wife's expenditure and its results will depend partly, of course, upon her taste and her skill with needle and scissors. But, however careful and ingenious she may be, she will not be able to face her friends for less than $100.

The unpleasant task of going to work each morning and of ordinary travels in the town will cost the couple another $100 in the year for street car and subway fares. And another $50 must be set aside for the two weeks' holiday in the country, assuming that they have no relatives to entertain them free of charge. It is not for nothing that the landlady of the typical London resort has been described by a disillusioned geometrician as "an angular figure, equal to anything!"

$52 for Amusements.

For the remainder of the year an allowance of $1 a week on amusements will permit them to indulge in the cheapest seats at the movies twice a week or to hear a play or concert twice a month.

But the wretched man must be allowed some vice. If he is a moderate smoker his two ounces a week will cost $20 cents or $25 a year. And madame must have her "gaspers" or her candy, so another $25 is set down for that.

PATIENCE URGED IN ROAD DEMANDS BY HIGHWAY CHIEF

Colonel Sam Tates, state highway board chairman, Tuesday addressed an appeal to the people of the state asking that further demands for work on federal highway routes be withheld until the board is able to match federal aid funds allocated to Georgia. "If the people will only wait until we have the money with which to match federal aid funds we can do the work necessary for half the amount it would cost the state to do it now," he said. "The board is just as anxious as anyone to get all main routes in the state paved, or at least put into and kept in good condition."

"Work done on federal roads now by us would mean that we pay all the costs. If we wait until we have funds available to put up against federal money the government will pay half of it."

DR. NATHAN TEAGUE HEADS PI KAPPA PHI

Principal Address of Annual Banquet Made by John D. Carroll.

The quarter of century activities of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity were sketched in an interesting address by John D. Carroll, prominent South Carolina attorney, at the annual Founders' Day banquet of the Atlanta Alumni Association held Tuesday night at the Anley. L. O. Moseley, manager of the hotel and retiring president of the local alumni association, presided.

Dr. Nathan Teague, prominent dentist, was named president for the ensuing year; James H. Watkins, first vice president; John Holder, second vice president; Cronin Fairbridge, third vice president; and James W. Whitaker, secretary and treasurer. A glowing account of the work of the alumni body was made by Mr. Moseley and the more than 100 members present applauded his remarks.

A radio program at WSB which started at 10:45 o'clock and continued for one hour was in charge of Ray Nixon, of Emory university. An address by Mr. Carroll was a feature of this broadcast which was made up of songs and orations by members of the national fraternity. Chapters at Emory, Oglethorpe and Georgia Tech were represented.

A painting of one of the founders of the fraternity, Andrew Kroeg, done by Mrs. Flossie Green, of this city, was exhibited at the meeting. The painting will be presented to the national convention in Charleston the latter part of December as the gift of the Atlanta Alumni Association.

Miss Margaret Moring and a trio of her most talented pupils gave a number of dances during the banquet.

Mr. Carroll, who is one of the oldest living members of the fraternity, is spending today in the city to greet old friends and probably will visit and inspect the three active chapters of the fraternity here.

THEATER MAGNATE DECLARES PERFUME IS BEST ADVERTISER

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Samuel Rothafel, New York theater magnate and operator of "Roxie's," today advised theater operators of North and South Carolina, holding their winter convention here, to include an allowance for perfume in their annual advertising budget. "Find out what perfume is most popular," Rothafel said, describing his own methods, "and I spray a delicate suggestion of that perfume through my house. Then whenever the patron encounters that same fragrance he or she is reminded of the Roxie. It is better than a myriad of billboards."

This is the third time that Mr. Black has given free to The Constitution automobiles to be auctioned off for Atlanta's poor.

ATLANTA IS SLOW AIDING 'OPPORTUNITIES'

help, will lose the chance promised them for 1930. They will lose their hope of winning their way back to a self-supporting basis.

These are not common street beggars whom you are being asked to help with a willing hand. They are not the people who whine as you go by and curse you if you do not drop a quarter in the cup. They are honest, decent people . . . and all they ask is the opportunity of over-coming present setbacks and a chance to make their own way.

CHRISTMAS IS NEAR FOR CITY'S NEEDIEST.

Christmas is just around the corner . . . two whoops, a holler and a hound's bay up the road. And when Christmas is upon us, and everybody is making merry with happy laughter and bright eyes, what will be your reflection? That you have done a good deed by extending the helping hand of the Good Samaritan? Or that these Atlanta needy poor have been left to shift for themselves.

If it is the latter, heaven help them. They can't shift for themselves. Fathers dead, deserted or ill permanently; funds so low as to be negligible; the cupboard as bare as that of Mother Hubbard; how can they help themselves? Already buffeted by the cold winds of ill chance until they are grasping at straws like drowning persons, how are they to go through another year of life without a substantial boost to help them on their way?

There is always the course of suicide. But these families are not that kind. They believe in the Holy Book. They will starve to death before they will take their own lives. Have you ever been on a diet? Have you obeyed doctors' orders and nibbled at lettuce leaf while the savory odor of baked meats tempted you? Then, if you have, you will have a faint idea of what it means to be on a perpetual diet—a diet that you are powerless to break.

FIVE PERSONS RESPOND TO TUESDAY'S APPEAL.

Five persons responded to the opportunities appeal Tuesday. Their contributions were small, but appreciated. Atlanta is a city of 300,000 persons, and if each of the well-to-do would give, the full amount needed for the 10 opportunities would be raised in a day. The well-to-do haven't responded so far, however, and it looks like it might be up to us average citizens to perform this good deed. So, come on, folks, and let's raise this money. Any amount will be appreciated, however small. The most generous gift was the widow's mite.

In this morning's issue of The Constitution, the fourth opportunity is presented. Now let's get down to brass tacks and send in the money. Don't wait until the last moment. And, when you send in your check for the opportunities, don't forget to enclose a bid on one of the seven used car bargains given to the fund by D. C. Black, Buick dealer.

A letter from Mrs. H. C. Wells, of 940 Beecher street, S. W., Tuesday, offered clothing for the children from time to time and food and toys at Christmas, in addition to her cash contribution. A letter from the Garden Flower Shop expressed hope that the 10 Opportunities will find "a ready response to this noble cause."

RESCUE SHIPS REACH VESSEL AFIRE AT SEA

ISLE OF SHOALS, Maine, Dec. 10.—(AP)—An unidentified vessel was burning ten miles east-southeast of here today. Three coast guard vessels and a tug had reached the craft, but owing to lack of communication facilities, her identity or condition could not be learned.

Coast guardsmen here believed the vessel to be a steamer, although view of her was obscured by smoke.

MEAGER SAVINGS OF BOY STOLEN.

Penny by penny Charles saved from his tiny earnings for a Christmas present for his sick father . . . a pair of overalls. He didn't have a bank, so he kept the money in an old sock under his mother's bed. One day he went to the boarding place to add another coin to the collection. Consternation struck him. And then terror—the mislaid savings were gone. Even the sock was missing.

If Charles can obtain schooling now, he will show you what a Boy Scout can do to care for his family when he is bigger. He isn't a scout now, but he hopes to be one soon.

BARE NECESSITIES ALL HE ASKS.

TORTURING PAINS OF NEURITIS YIELD TO NEW SARGON

Frank N. Sawyer, Who Operated First Electric Car From Atlanta to Decatur Makes Remarkable Statement.

"I never would have thought it possible for any medicine to do for me what Sargon and Sargon Pills did," declared Frank N. Sawyer, well-known farmer of Route 1, Atlanta, recently.

FRANK N. SAWYER.

cently. Mr. Sawyer was with the Georgia Power Co. for fifteen years. He ran the first electric car from Atlanta to Decatur.

"For fifteen years my health had been failing steadily, and I had a bad case of stomach trouble and chronic constipation. Sometimes I'd go three days without a bowel movement. My appetite went down to nothing, and I suffered almost constantly with indigestion. My liver must have been in bad shape for I'd get bilious, nauseated, and so faint and dizzy sometimes I'd have to lie down to keep from falling on my head. I had neuritis so bad in my arm that I couldn't raise my hand to my head or lie on my right side and sometimes I couldn't turn myself in bed. My kidneys seemed weak and I had severe pains in the small of my back. My nerves were a wreck; I couldn't sleep over one or two hours, and mornings I felt miserable."

"My sister had taken Sargon with such wonderful results she advised me to try it, and I did. I felt better from the first, my appetite picked up, and I began to gain strength. I continued the treatment until I had taken three bottles of the tonic and now I am in better health than I've been for years. I eat anything that's set before me, and every sign of stomach trouble and indigestion have gone. The neuritis and every other ache and pain have left me and I sleep good every night. Why, I can now get out and cut up wood and do other hard jobs on the farm—something I haven't been able to do in a long time. Sargon Pills are the best medicine I've ever taken for constipation and I've tried about every laxative made. They regulated me fine without making me the least bit sick or upset. I am never bilious now. I can't praise Sargon enough, and I'll gladly go out of my way any day to talk about this wonderful medicine."

The Sargon Man is at Jacobs' Main Store, 14 Marietta St., where he is meeting the public daily and explaining the merits of this remarkable new medicine. Sargon may be obtained at all Jacobs' Drug Stores throughout Atlanta.—(adv.)

Woman Bootlegger.
TEXARKANA, Ark., Dec. 10.—(AP) Mrs. Bonnie Fulmer, one of 14 women arrested last July in connection with a campaign by federal officers against bootleggers was convicted and sentenced to one year's imprisonment in Bowie county court at Boston, Texas, today. A jury trying her yesterday was discharged after it became deadlocked. The verdict was returned after 30 minutes' deliberation by the jury at a new trial today.

Mrs. Fulmer's trial, the second in appearance of her daughter, Ruby Dell Allen, 16, testifying in her defense. The girl is also the state's principal witness against Levi Ragland charged with killing Jack Chilcote here December 1 at a party at the girl's home. Mrs. Fulmer contended the liquor if found at her home was the property of Dot Benson, 20, a roomer at the Fulmer home and who is being sought by police after failing to appear for trial.

COOLIDGE GETS TIP AGAINST SENATE RACE

Senator Harrison Assured by Senator Walsh Democrats Will Take Care of State.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A "friendly tip" was offered to Calvin Coolidge by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, in the senate today not to "fall in with the conspiracy" of republicans associated with President Hoover to run for the senate in the Massachusetts election next year.

Harrison suggested the "conspiracy" was to "bury" Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, and Coolidge in the senate. He said those anxious about the renomination of President Hoover regarded these two men as the "serious" contenders for his post.

"But I have too much respect for Mr. Coolidge," said Harrison, "to believe that he will follow this subtle plan inaugurated by those close to President Hoover and bury himself in the senate."

"He won't shine with the same degree of brilliance here as at the White House. He will just take a back seat and play into the hands of Mr. Hoover. The press will comment that he is taking no part in debate and that he has lost his influence and the way will be cleared for the renomination of Mr. Hoover."

Senator Walsh, democrat, of Massachusetts, replied that the Mississippian need have no fears about Massachusetts.

"I assure him," said Walsh, "that the democrats of Massachusetts will take care of any candidate nominated by the republicans and that I will soon have a democratic colleague here."

CUT THE INCOME TAXES.

Lacking genius for doing something worth while for the general welfare a few senators want to further ball-up the legislative and economic situation by delaying income tax reduction while hatchet-hacking on the tariff plum tree.

They should have learned by this time that very few of the people who do not trail after Joe Grundy and his handiwork care a hoot whether congress passes a tariff bill, or does not. The common citizen busy with his job is about convinced that the tariff which now is will serve his interests about as well as the patchwork quilt affair the senate is now ripping and re-sewing from day to day.

But a one per cent cut of income taxes, meaning savings of $70,000-000 to individuals who pay such taxes, and $90,000,000 to the corporations to whom practically all the people pay the taxes that the aforementioned companies pay to the government, means something more present and profitable to "all the people" than they can see in anybody's tariff bill.

Anyhow, there is plenty of time between now and George Washington's bi-centennial in which to pass a tariff act, but if the income taxpayers are to get that one per cent cut on this year's taxes, the reduction resolution must have speedy action.

And should a filibuster against such action appear it should be promptly strangled by application of the cloture rule.

A CONTESTED PROPOSAL.

Opposition to the bill by Senator Couzens to establish federal regulation of communications, such as radio, is developing all over the country. It is especially strong among members of state bodies charged with regulation and rate making for utility services within a state.

The idea of the Couzens proposal is that the agencies of communication should be treated as the railways are under the federal supervision and control of the interstate commerce commission. That idea, however, is less popular among state officials and the people generally than when the interstate commerce commission was first organized.

That body has asserted powers that the public did not dream of according to it when it was set up for the protection of the people against the uncontrolled exactions of transportation corporations.

In its evolutions the interstate commerce commission has become a national body, and the only one, that exercises portions of the powers of all three of the separate departments of government. Its functions have grown to be legislative, executive and judicial, and by the exercise of these combined powers it has expanded its authority from the regulation of interstate commerce and invaded the rights of the states by regulating intrastate commerce and nullifying the acts of state commissions both in part and in whole.

It is the defense of the federal commission that 85 per cent of railway business is interstate and therefore for the protection of the people in general interested in such commerce the states should not be permitted to hamper it by purely local restrictions. That view has been accepted by the federal judiciary, so that in any incident of regulation within the state that affects interstate commerce the state commissions are powerless.

Fear that a similar state of affairs would grow out of the system of regulation of telegraphs, telephones, wireless and radio proposed in the Couzens bill is stirring state officials, newspapers and business executives to protest against it. The fact that 85 per cent of such communications are intrastate and only 15 per cent interstate reverses the argument used to support the usurpation of plenary powers by the interstate commerce commission.

The people at large have the commanding interest in the issue of communications control, and they envision infinite troubles to accrue from having a federal commission attempting to regulate and make rates for all the telegraph and telephone operations in the 48 several states of the Union. Congress should consider the Couzens bill with serious regard for state and public rights.

SOUTHERN WOMEN'S WAGES.

The custom of moral, political and industrial reformers in the north and east of representing the south as backward, bourgeois and brutal in labor conditions, is so common that fresh attacks from those sources no longer heat us up.

On the contrary, it is really amusing at times to note how those critics are made to "fa" down and go boom" by the indisputable facts of a case.

For instance, in the recent textile labor troubles stirred up in the Piedmont area by the bolsheviks of an alleged eastern "union" repudiated wholly by the American Federation of Labor, the eastern and northern papers and people were treated to horrific tales of the pau-perizing treatment given to mill workers in the south. Hogheads of tears were figuratively shed over the "starvation wages" paid to the "poor, emaciated women mill hands!"

But now comes the director of the women's bureau in the federal department of labor reporting the results of the official survey in 11 states representative of the textile industry and employing 88.5 per cent of all the wage earners engaged in cotton manufacturing in the United States. While it dis-closes that between 1924 and 1928 average full-time earnings of the women workers has declined nearly 13 per cent, the heavier declines were made in the six northern states. Taking into full account all the factors of difference between the age-experience and the physical environments, those heavy declines throw a large burden of explanation upon the northern mill people.

In Georgia, for example, the decline of women's full-time cotton mill earnings from 1924 figures to those of 1928 was four-tenths of 1 per cent, which figures exactly 5 cents per week! In North Carolina the drop is 5.9 per cent; in South Carolina it is 4.3 per cent; but in Alabama there is the only advance shown by any of the 11 states, being a rise of 4.5 per cent.

Consider, by way of contrast, that the wages of women mill workers fell, in the same period, 10 per cent in Rhode Island; 12.9 per cent in Connecticut; 14.4 per cent in New Hampshire; 15.5 in Maine; 16.2 in New York, and 18.2 in Massachusetts, touted as the state of ideal labor conditions in its century-old mills.

The suggestion arising from the above recited facts is that about this time in the year, when the Christmas shops are flaming and chimney-hung socks will soon be yawning, is the right time for the labor agitators and hell-raisers who came south from New York and Massachusetts to redeem our textile workers from pauperization, should hold lodges of sorrow and salvation back at their homes.

Representative Edwards, of the first Georgia district, broke a record for the new congress by introducing 50 bills in one day. There is nothing like making Georgia first in everything.

Some newspapers will curtail their size to 10 per cent to take the sting out of the increase in price of newspaper. What to leave out will be an easy problem. Omit the "sports" to satisfy the society folks and the "society" to please the sporting element.

ing the most beautiful legs in the

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASEN

In Name Of Science.

Certain American scientific explorers have discovered near Thebes in the Valley of the Kings in Egypt, the tomb of Queen Meret Amun, who was the wife of Pharaoh Amen-hotep III. Getting down into the tomb the Americans were sadly disappointed. "Disgusting," they exclaimed, "to this effect. 'Everything has been looted here.' They did let sure the queen hadn't any of her jewels left, nor any ornaments with which Egyptian royalties were buried and are the judge by the mass of treasure at the time of the Tut and Amon find. It was a sore disappointment for the explorers. After some work of uncovering the tomb, and then to find that a band of robbers had there maybe 1,500 years ago or 3,000 years, it doesn't matter much how long. And what did the explorers do then? They did let something as the robbers they so heartily execrated. The robbers took Queen Meret's golden shmy, thinking no doubt that she would sleep in it as well without it. The explor-

Senate Plans Investigation Of Grain Dealer 'Blockade' In Farm Board's Program

Caraway Committee Will Probe Rumors of At- tempts To Frustrate Fed- eral Plan for Farm Co- operatives.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Investigation was ordered today by Chairman Caraway, of the senate subcommittee on agriculture, into charges of a campaign by the commission grain dealers against the farm board program for a farmer-owned and controlled grain marketing agency.

Julius Barnes, a friend of President Hoover and chairman of the board of the United States Chamber of Commerce, was summoned to appear Friday as the first witness. Subsequently, a denial was made at the White House that Barnes had intervened with the president against the farm board's plan.

It was stated at the White House that Mr. Hoover had supported the farm board and that it was natural to be expected that he would continue to do so.

At the same time it was disclosed at the White House that Frank G. Crowell, a Kansas City grain dealer, had discussed the matter with the president during a call last week. It was stated that the president and Mr. Crowell were old friends and that the farm board question came up in a general conversation.

Not Versed.

In this connection there was suggestion that some grain dealers took the position that the Farmers' Union and other co-operatives are not sufficiently versed in grain marketing to take control of the situation.

A view also was expressed that the commission men were under a misapprehension as to the program of the farm board, and that when this was more fully developed some of the opposition probably would fade.

Sena Nye, republican, North Dakota, disclosed the activities of a Minneapolis grain commission house against the proposed farmer-owned corporation in a speech to the senate yesterday and said Julius Barnes headed a delegation of commission men which appeared before the farm board last week in protest. He warned that "warfare" was on against the board and supported Chairman Legge, of the board.

In a speech yesterday before the American Farm Bureau Federation at Chicago, Legge remarked that "I may be kicked out and probably will."

'Blockers.'

In calling Barnes, Senator Caraway remarked today that "we are going to investigate those seeking to block this grain organization so that the brokers on the Chicago Board of Trade will be entitled to handle the crops as usual."

"If the farm board can find some agency for marketing crops they can stop these market slumps," continued Caraway. "I have confidence in Chairman Legge."

Caraway said he was uncertain what the lobby committee would undertake after hearing Barnes on Friday. He said he was interested in the letter which was read by Nye to the senate and written by the H. L. Hanson Company, grain commission dealers of Minneapolis, elevator owners of the northwest. However, he has not determined to call officials of that company.

Nye reported today a wave of favorable reaction to his disclosures of the campaign by the commission dealers against the farm board's program for a national grain marketing organization.

ACTION IS DEFERRED AT LAVARRE HEARING

Judge Deaver Suggests Means of Untangling Paper Litigation.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver today offered a suggestion to straighten out one of the tangled phases of the Hall-LaVarre newspaper litigation, but after a second lengthy session of argument on the point at issue counsel for both sides agreed to defer final action until tomorrow morning.

Judge Deaver's plan would replace a writ of supersedeas sought by William LaVarre to set aside certain portions of a court decree of September 30, by which Harold Hall was upheld in his suit to establish a claim to equal partnership with LaVarre in the operation of the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle, the Columbia (S. C.) Record, and the Spartanburg (S. C.) Journal and Herald. Petition for the writ requested the court to supersede the injunction restraining LaVarre from operating any of the papers except on a partnership basis, and the accompanying order directing LaVarre to transfer the stock of the three South Carolina papers to J. T. Webb, Jr., court commissioner. Hall has already transferred the Chronicle stock to Webb.

Although George S. Jones, of counsel for Hall, said today that agreeing to the writ was acceptable to his client, provided the court would fix adequate bond for protection against "the risk involved by restoring a large part of control to LaVarre," Judge Deaver stated that he preferred not to issue the supersedeas if opposing attorneys could agree on a plan he had in mind.

"There has been entirely too much personal feeling in this case," he said, "but I think we are all interested primarily in preserving the value of this stock until LaVarre's pending appeal from my decree is settled. I would suggest, therefore, that the stock be turned over to Mr. Webb as ordered, and that Mr. LaVarre continue operating the three South Carolina papers until there is evidence that his management is inefficient. In the latter event the commissioner would have power to check operations, but I would issue a supplementary order restraining sale of the stock until the case is settled."

Judge Deaver added that, if a "very attractive offer" were made, he might order the stock sold, in which case he said LaVarre's counsel could obtain a writ of supersedeas and furnish bond, if they did not consent to the sale.

Hall's attorneys finally approved Judge Deaver's suggestion, while J. E. Hall, of local counsel for LaVarre, said the plan was acceptable to him but that he wanted a little more time to communicate with out-of-town attorneys in the case, inasmuch as adoption of the new plan involved withdrawal of the supersedeas petition.

Dr. Harvey Cox, Emory Head, Will "Light a Living Tree"

BY BEN COOPER. Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory University, appreciates the good cheer to be derived from lighting the living Christmas trees.

Dr. Cox Tuesday assumed responsibility for having one of the magnificent lighted Christmas trees in the Emory campus quadrangle lighted this Yuletide to the spirit of Christmas to the students from many sections of the country, and of the world, attending Emory.

If the present response to the plea for lighting the living trees at Christmas continues, Atlanta and environs will be one bright section in this merry Yuletide. The cost of lighting the trees is not much, but the effect is tremendous, as will be recalled by those who saw the trees illuminated last year.

Loew's Capitol theater and the Biltmore hotel have joined the list of those who will light living Christmas trees this year. Theaters and other institutions are urged to follow suit and spread Christmas joy with lighted living Christmas trees. Atlanta home-owners, particularly, are desired in the list of those who will extend Christmas best wishes in this manner.

Names of those who respond to the campaign to light the living Christmas trees will be published daily. Atlantaans who desire to join the list of happiness dispensers should write or phone their names to The Constitution now.

Those who did so Tuesday follow: Mrs. John Townley, 1287 Fairview road.

Mrs. H. N. Traywick, 1305 Euclid avenue.

Mrs. C. J. Cox, 681 Delmar street.

Mrs. C. T. Baker, 1236 Mansfield street.

Mrs. Tom Brooks, 146 East Seventeenth street.

Mrs. Rawson Collier, 46 Woodcrest avenue.

Mrs. S. M. Whitner, 67 Fourteenth street.

Writer Puzzled By Color of Hair Of Leading Lady

BY RALPH T. JONES. The big issue in conversation between Miss Vida Hanna and this commentator on things theatrical is the color of the lady's hair. Writing of the show, "The Vagabond King," after seeing it in Memphis last Saturday.

Plaintiffs are citizens and manufacturers of Rome, who charge that the state income tax act passed by the 1923 legislature is unconstitutional. R. C. Norman, state tax commissioner, has filed a demurrer and an answer contending that the act is constitutional.

Arguments in the Boykin income tax case will be concluded by noon today in Judge E. D. Thomas' division of Fulton superior court. Hearing began on Monday, when the pleadings were read. The argument began Tuesday.

ILLINI SEE ROOSEVELT AS PRESIDENTIAL HOPE

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, visioned a brighter future today for the democratic party in 1930 and left with the party leaders in Chicago and Illinois renewed hopes of success in the coming congressional elections.

The governor, New York governor, who, aided by a trooper from his own state, went from one group of leaders to another, addressed a luncheon assembly of several thousand democrats, called by Thomas F. Donovan, Illinois national committeeman, to honor Governor Roosevelt as a presidential possibility in 1932.

The governor sailed through several subjects in his address and dwelt upon public utility and the water-powers fight in New York, the farm problem, the Democratic senatorial situation, and ended in an appeal to democratic organizations in every state to work continually from now until November next for the success of their party.

Jonet Shouse, chairman of a partisan democratic executive committee, delivered a preliminary upon what he termed the failure of the republican party to enact a tariff measure.

Pouncing on what he called "the Grundy episode," Governor Roosevelt said:

"Probably I should speak as a partisan democrat and thank God for Joseph Grundy, for he has done much to aid the democratic cause. But instead I speak as an American citizen and I hope that the rumors are not true that the governor of Pennsylvania is going to appoint Grundy to the United States senate."

Defending the reference to "backward states" made by Grundy in his recent testimony before a congressional committee, the New York governor called these "backward states" the "backbone of American civilization."

Governor Roosevelt planned to return to Albany tonight after a banquet at which he was the principal speaker.

MANSLAUGHTER CASES REVERSED BY COURT

Cleve Bobo, of Floyd and Anderson Foy, of Chatham, To Get New Trials.

Two convictions of manslaughter in the cases of Cleve Bobo, of Floyd county, and Anderson Foy, of Chatham county, were reversed by the court of appeals Tuesday and the cases remanded for new trials.

Bobo was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the shooting of William Riddle, in 1927, and was sentenced to from 5 to 10 years.

He claimed that he killed Riddle in self defense when he was attacked with rocks.

On trial the defense attempted to introduce the rocks in evidence, but was refused by the court. The court of appeals ruled this refusal an error and grounds for a new trial.

Foy was convicted of involuntary manslaughter and sentenced to 12 months or $1,000 fine, in connection with the death of Campsie Hamilton, a negro, who was said to have been more than 100 years old. She was killed when an automobile driven by Foy struck a wagon in which she was riding.

The evidence showed that the wagon did not carry a light and that, as Foy's car was going up hill the elevated headlights failed to reveal the wagon. The court of appeals said that the evidence did not show criminal negligence and ordered a new trial.

In a case from the Reidsville city court, Mrs. P. N. Griner vs. H. H. Elders, administrator of the estate of Mrs. J. P. Brannen, judgment of the lower court was upheld. The suit was brought on a check for $250 given by Mrs. Griner to Mrs. Brannen, but not cashed until after Mrs. Brannen's death. The court of appeals, ruling that a gift check was not cancelled by the death of the donor, held that it should be honored.

A $500 judgment for Mrs. W. H. Christian against the city of East Point for injuries received from stepping into an open water meter was affirmed.

AMERICAN CIVIC PRIDE IS PRAISED BY PERRY

Conditions in England would be improved if the civic pride that exists in the cities throughout the United States prevailed there, Alfred P. Perry, London correspondent, said Tuesday in an address before the Atlanta Civitan Club.

Mr. Perry is in the United States as a holder of a Walter Hines Rine newspaper fellowship, and is touring the country and working on the principal newspapers to get a thorough contact with American life. At present he is on the staff of The Constitution.

Comparisons were drawn by Mr. Perry on many phases of English and American life. He referred briefly to the unemployment problem that existed in his country and explained that the situation had arisen because of industrial conditions.

England being largely dependent on her export trade, it was pointed out by Mr. Perry, had been hit very seriously by competition from countries where extraordinarily low wage scales existed, and to this fact he attributed principally the unemployment situation.

Mr. Perry said that the unemployment benefit system that was being tried in England had been found to have both good and bad points, but that until the number of those out of work reached such great proportions, the plan had proved fairly successful.

Major Clark Howell, business manager of The Constitution, introduced Mr. Perry. Major Howell also introduced Helen Parish, clever and attractive young journalist, who were guests of honor.

Announcement was made by Herbert Porter that the meeting would be observed at the meeting next Tuesday, and that a Christmas party would be held on January 3. Mr. Porter also announced that the meeting before and after Christmas would not be held as they come on Christmas Day and New Year's eve.

LOWER SOUTH GEORGIA ELECTRIC RATE FIXED

New Scale of Commission Affects 12 Towns Served by Georgia Power and Light.

The Georgia public service commission Tuesday established a new and lower electric rate for Valdosta, Waycross, Bainbridge and 12 other towns served by the Georgia Power and Light Company.

The rate, it was said, will result in reductions in all, and will give the smaller towns the same rate as the three larger ones, which heretofore have enjoyed a preference.

A service charge of $1 per month is included in the new rate. Six cents per kilowatt hour will be charged for the first 50 used; 3 cents each for the next 150, and 2 cents for all over 200 kilowatt hours per month. With the exception of several small users, it was said, all of the customers will receive reductions.

Other towns which will be affected by the new rate are: Blackshear, Boston, Climax, Colquitt, Hahira, Homerville, Jessup, Offeman, Patterson, Screven, Sparks, Wareboro.

The public service commission denied the application of the Southern Motorways to operate between Atlanta and Knoxville, and the petition of the Yellow Cab Coach Company to operate between Atlanta and the Tennessee line. A certificate was granted to the White Star line to operate between Atlanta and Knoxville.

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg wakes in a strange room to learn that he has been robbed of his money and traveling bag by a former college acquaintance named Standish after a convoluted fight together. The landlady of the strange boarding house insists that he telephone some friend for money before she allows him to dress. He goes out to a hall telephone booth in his pajamas. On the way back to his room he passes a pretty girl, who stares in astonishment at his appearance. His attorney, David Craig, sends him the money he needs.

INSTALLMENT III.

AN ENGAGEMENT TO LUNCH.

Only when John Andrew and his father were at last in the cabin of the river boat did Andrew Kellogg actually speak to his son.

"She's gone from us," Andrew Kellogg said, and John Andrew knew that this meant his mother, "and so you've got to start being a man early, John Andrew. You are to get from this craft at Yokohama, where a friend will be waiting for a lad like you. He is to put you on the China and will give the captain instructions so that he sees to it that my agent in San Francisco meets you there. And so to New York, where David Craig will see to schoolin'. Keep your money buttoned up, John Andrew, except to your friends. Mind David Craig. The boat's movin' . . . I'll come as soon as I can. . ."

And Andrew Kellogg had come as soon as he could. As if to recompense him for the death of his wife, matters changed swiftly. Makie laquer became easier to buy. There were five good silk years in succession, and Kellogg borrowed heavily to buy hugely. A fleet of river boats was sold at a price ridiculously low, and Kellogg found that he was shipping his own merchandise. The Yokohama godown was no longer large enough to hold his shipments, and so he built another. It was foolish to pay rent for offices and so he bought the building . . . and finally sent his Tokio manager to the states to build up his own selling organization there. . .

It was almost a shock to him when he came to San Francisco at last and saw the size of his offices.

John Drew was a skinny boy in the lowest form when his father continued on to New York; a good boy, David Craig twisted him round their fingers, the lawyer said. To which Kellogg retorted that he would have time enough to grow hard.

As John Andrew grinned his way through college, never the lowest in his classes, but never near the top, it became apparent to his father that the boy indeed could be easily imposed upon. Slowly Andrew Kellogg rebuilt his organization, selling here, changing there, until the original company had become a thing almost as marketable as money; until it was represented by real estate and mortgages and bonds, which not even a poor business man could tear down. When Craig wondered at it and hinted that it was because of John Andrew, the father said, "Would ye have him go to Japan as I did, David, and have some bonny lass come as his wife and die there?"

"It isn't the lad, it was me," Andrew Kellogg said, at the end. "I remember him, five years old, and never a tear out of him, with his mother just buried under the plum tree, settin' our for the states. . . I wanted it easy for him, David." The very last thing Andrew said to John Andrew was, "It's all yours, laddie. To do with as you will, as soon as you learn how." John Andrew, who had wanted to cry, managed to achieve a trembling sort of a grin; the two men were handclapped and smiling at each other.

John Andrew continued to live in the apartment—from the window of which Andrew Kellogg had watched the ships slip noiselessly down the Hudson.

He lost his first job when he protested at an office manager firing a clerk for a mistake John Andrew believed was the manager's own; he lost his second job because Barbara simply had to go to the Dartmouth game; he lost this third job. . .

And now, whistling something, he was walking up Broadway, seemingly finding the world very good.

John Andrew, as he walked, tried to think things out: Saunders hadn't seemed to care about anything but the lost order. Now he had to explain it all over again to Craig and take another tongue lashing. It was also only a question of time when Barbara found it out. John Andrew decided that the wisest thing to do would be to see her first, and when she said "What on earth are you going to do now?" merely say that he didn't know until he had talked with Craig.

He jingled some of the coins he had obtained at the hotel in his pocket and went into the first drugstore. "How good a connection you have,"

Barbara exclaimed. "Why, you sound just as if you were on Broadway instead of being in Utica. . . dear of you to call me, John Andrew."

"Telephones are getting better and better," John Andrew said. "Wonderful the improvements they're making in the scientific and commercial world. . . I'll bet you can almost hear the noise from the street?"

"I. . . I can hear a clanging. . . St. William's ambulance going past."

There was a short silence, and then, doubtfully, "I didn't know there was any St. William's hospital except in New York."

John Andrew said cheerfully, "There isn't."

The pause was longer this time; it was John Andrew who broke it by saying, "I'm very low, Barbara. I haven't had any breakfast. I think I had dinner last night, but I'm not sure. Lunch is a necessity. . . you'll be where?"

Still no answer. "Look here," John Andrew said, "I'm a sick man. I'm exhausted. I've been told that Utica is more important than Broadway and I resent it. I need to be encouraged."

"You always say 'I'," he heard. "You come along down for lunch and I'll say 'you' so many times that everyone will think we're on our honeymoon. . . now be a nice girl."

"Aren't you working today?" "No," John Andrew said. "Not today."

"I wish you hadn't sold your car," Barbara Thornton fretted.

"The taxi still run, woman; be democratic. I'd come and get you, but gray does not go with your eyes, so I'm going to change. He glanced down at his rumpled suit. "I need your advice," he coaxed.

He could almost see Barbara's head go up. "I'll come," she agreed. "You want to eat at some place where you can get a tremendous amount of food?"

"Um," John Andrew said. "The thought of food makes me weak. I'll meet you at the same place, my dear."

The use of the line about asking for advice, John Andrew knew, had decided her. Nice girl, Barbara, but a little bossy. He supposed that some day what was it that Craig called her? A canny lass, well. . .

An old Japanese opened the door of John Andrew at the apartment—Kellogg, Sr.'s servant, brought from the Orient.

"I have kept you waiting. . . my conduct is inexcusable," the ancient bowed.

"Don't you go making fun of me, Koto," John Andrew said. "I want a bath."

Koto sucked in his breath placidly: "You no go 'way ras' night? You got too much sake?"

John Andrew bowed solemnly, and the ancient's face wrinkled into displeasure.

"Ver' bad boy," he chided. "Friend get money again, also?"

"I'm," said John Andrew. "Koto no denakatta wa zannen datta," the old man said.

"Kellogg had heard this protestation many times before. He asked curiously, "If you had been there, what would you have done about it?"

The Japanese made a stabbing motion through the air. "That would make you a ver' bad boy," John Andrew told him.

After he had bathed, John Andrew found that he was not refreshed to the point where either lunch with Barbara or the afternoon with Craig were things to offer enjoyment. He did not attempt to figure ways of avoiding either; they had to be done. As if it had become a talisman, he rescued the bruised conflowers and placed them in the buttonhole of the darker suit.

Koto, observing the flowers, offered immediate comment: "You go see lady?"

"What? O. . . lady? Right, Koto. Very much lady."

"No, not very good Koto—" "Geeh?"

John Andrew laughed. "No. Very proper lady, Koto. I meant that she is going to tell me many things I want to hear."

LONG HOSPITAL COURSE URGED FOR SURGEONS

Dr. Lucius E. Burch Recommends That 3-Year Internship Be Necessary for License.

Recommendation that medical students intending to practice surgery be required to take a full three-year hospital course after graduation before applying for license was made to the annual meeting of the Southern Surgical Association, in session at the Atlanta Biltmore, Tuesday by Dr. Lucius E. Burch, of Nashville, Tenn., association president.

Dr. Burch's recommendation was made in the course of his delivery of the president's address at the evening session. Approximately 120 southern surgeons, out of the total membership of 200, are in attendance. A morning session Tuesday was devoted to the reading of technical papers and the afternoon was set aside for the annual golf tournament.

Today the association will hold two business sessions, one this morning and another in the afternoon. Tonight the annual banquet will be held and Thursday the final session, including the election of officers and selection of the next place of meeting take place.

Eminent Surgeons Take Part.

Taking part in the informal discussion of technical papers read by surgeons of high rank in the south, including such subjects as "Phrenic Exsais in the Treatment of Tuberculosis," illustrated, were such eminent surgeons as Dr. Charles H. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., and Dr. Howard Kelly, of Baltimore, Md. Another distinguished surgeon in attendance upon the meeting is the picturesque Dr. R. C. Coffey, of Portland, Ore.

"I would consider it a progressive move on the part of the American College of Surgeons," Dr. Burch declared in his annual address, "and the special examining boards to require at least three years of hospital work before a candidate can appear before them for consideration. If a three-year hospital training was required by these bodies it would compel the staffs of the recognized hospitals to devote more time to the training of the house staff."

"A plan I would advance to my fellow surgeons for adoption as a policy of this association would be to require, after graduation, one year's service in medicine in any good hospital—no one can become a good surgeon unless he has received a medical training—and the second year in pathology. The third, fourth and fifth years should be spent in wards, laboratories and operating rooms, and in a measure, on what the graduate desires to specialize in."

Not Too Many Specialists.

"There are not too many specialists in the medical profession," Dr. Burch declared, "but they should be self-sufficient unto themselves. It seems to me that this problem of training the future surgeon to meet this economic situation is a major problem of medical education not heretofore attempted."

"I hope to see the time when medical schools will equip certain conveniently located rooms with all the apparatus and materials which the future physician will require in practice so that modern diagnosis can be accomplished in his own office with equally good results."

It is a weakness," Dr. Burch added, "to place a man on a full-time basis and make him turn over to the hospital feels he collects from private patients in that institution. It creates an unfriendly spirit."

Ernest Given Ovation.

When Dr. J. G. Ernest, 85, of Atlanta, one of the oldest of practitioners, entered the meeting he was recognized by President Burch, presiding, and given a great ovation.

Assertion that while science has succeeded in prolonging human life it also has resulted in an increase of cancer was made before the Tuesday meeting by Dr. Charles Mayo, of the famous Mayo clinic.

"Science has succeeded in prolonging life from an average age of 35 or 40 to about 65. Only about five per cent of the cancer cases occur in young people. It is essentially a disease of older persons and generally in the late 50's or 60's."

"More than 4,000 different kinds of cancer treatment have been tried out," Dr. Mayo added. "Some of them seem to suggest important possibilities. The trouble is that claims often are made prematurely."

"Five years must elapse before a treatment can be tested adequately. Within that period a cancer which seems to have been cured may recur. You can feel reasonably safe after three years but not entirely sure for five."

PAIR STILL HELD HERE AS SUSPECTS
IN SAFE-BLOWING

Police Tuesday continued their investigation of A. R. Hampton, 24, and J. C. Jones, 21, held here in connection with a safe-blowing in Griffin, after Detective Lieutenant T. O. Sturdivant announced that the men admitted they were escaped convicts from Spartanburg, S. C., where they were serving time for safe-blowing in Florence, S. C.

Police suspect the men in connection with other recent robberies in the state and Columbus. Police have asked for their fingerprints to check with fingerprints obtained in several safe-blowings there. Hampton and Jones first told police they had been working in a Columbus cotton mill for the past five weeks.

Fingerprints received here from Griffin, where $500 in cash and $30,000 in notes and papers were stolen from an auto—agency safe, are being checked with fingerprints of Hampton and Jones, but the bureau of identification has not yet completed the photographing involved.

Lieutenant Sturdivant said he expected to have complete evidence soon on the Griffin robbery, but Hampton and Jones declined to admit guilt, telling him "you'll have to prove the job on us."

Arrest of Hampton and Jones followed a statement of Hampton's girl companion to a local hotel clerk implicating them in the Griffin safe-cracking.

The all-year-round Santa Claus to your Community

Happiness and good cheer are in the air. The Yuletide has rolled round again. Soon you and your family will be looking under holly and mistletoe to see what Kris Kringle has brought you! . . . Christmas, however, comes just once a year—and then only for a day. Quickly the busy world moves on. There is much work to be done, and, for this work, another kind of Santa Claus is needed. A Santa Claus which comes, not with reindeer and jingling bells, but on shining steel rails.

The railroad is the all-year-round Santa Claus to your community. It connects your town with the outside world, and you and your family with friends and loved ones elsewhere. It provides dependable outlets for the things your community makes, and brings the goods of the world to you. The railroad furnishes steady employment for many of your fellow-citizens and through their pay-checks, which are largely spent in your town, it adds directly or indirectly to your prosperity. The railroad buys locally, and pays city, county, and state taxes.

In patronizing this railroad, you are furthering your own best interests. For the more business it does, the better off you and your community will be. Travel and ship by rail—let the L. & N. serve you.

L & N

The L. & N. is widely known for its splendid dining-car service, which is not surpassed by that of any other railroad. The stewards and waiters are courteous and attentive to the wants of passengers, the food is the best the markets afford, and the charges are moderate. This service adds materially to the pleasures and comforts of a trip over the L. & N.

Styles of ANNETTE Paris—New York.

SMART SPORTS TYPE.

The younger fashionables are following the grownup mode so closely that they have now even turned to modern lines in their frocks for class room.

It isn't any wonder the young miss in Style No. 440 appears so important in her new frock of beige light-weight tweed—collared in brown with collar, deep turn-back flared cuffs and belt of plain matching beige woolen.

The skirt is attached to waist under the belt with deep pressed plaits at front. The wide belt of the plain woolen is worn at normal waistline.

Why not look attractive when it is accomplished so easily and economically. For the 8-year size, 1 3/4 yards of 40-inch material with 3-8 yard of 36-inch contrasting is sufficient to make it. Pattern can be had in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years.

Scotch plaided woolen in youthful red tones is ever so smart with plain trim.

CASTLE TO REPRESENT HOOVER IN JAPAN

President Sends Special Envoy to Tokyo for Duration of Navy Meet.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—President Hoover announced today the rather unusual procedure of sending a special ambassador to Japan for the duration of the London naval limitation conference and nominated William R. Castle, Jr., assistant secretary of state, as his envoy.

Thus while the five leading naval powers are undertaking to reach an agreement at the British capital, the chief executive will be represented at Tokyo by a personal friend who is familiar with the limitation question and with the policy of the American government.

Diplomats generally regarded the move as one of courtesy to the Japanese government, which has indicated its accord with the desires of the United States for as sharp a limitation of auxiliary warcraft as can be agreed upon by the five powers.

While holding for limitation, the Japanese are asking for a ratio of cruisers slightly in excess of that accepted at the Washington conference as regards capital ships. This subject already has been the basis for conversations between Tokyo, Washington and London.

The United States is not now represented at the Japanese capital, Charles MacVagh having retired as its ambassador some months ago at his own request because he desired to re-enter the practice of law.

Castle, who is a career diplomat, has been assistant secretary of state for a number of years and was mentioned for the post of under secretary with the retirement of Reuben Clark, Jr. He plans to leave for his new post on Christmas Day and will be accompanied by Mrs. Castle.

The special ambassador will stop off in Honolulu, where he was born, to spend three days with his father, who now is 81 years old. He will board a fast ship at Honolulu for Japan, arriving early in January, or two weeks before the London conference opens.

Castle will confer first with the Japanese delegation to the London conference, which arrives in Washington from Tokyo on December 16 to remain four days before proceeding to London. He also will confer with members of the American delegation to London now in this country.

These members—Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state; Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, and Senators Robinson, of Arkansas, and Reed, of Pennsylvania—are to hold their first and preliminary meeting at the state department tomorrow.

THE FRENCH ENTERED THE WAR WITH GALLIC ENTHUSIASM. THE MOBILIZATION OF THE ARMY PROGRESSED SMOOTHLY, AND WITHIN A FEW DAYS THE FRENCH FORCES, DIVIDED INTO FIVE ARMIES, WERE MASSED ALONG THE BORDER FROM BELGIUM TO SWITZERLAND, FORMING A LINE SOME TWO HUNDRED MILES LONG.

THE FRENCH DID NOT INTEND TO WAIT FOR THE GERMANS TO INVADE FRANCE. GENERAL JOFFRE, THE FRENCH COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, PURPOSED, WHEN THE MOMENT FOR ACTION ARRIVED, TO HURL ALL HIS FORCES TO THE EAST, ON BOTH SIDES OF METZ, AND IMMEDIATELY CARRY THE FIGHTING INTO GERMAN TERRITORY.

The Story of the World War The First French Offensive

AUGUST 6, FRENCH ADVANCE GUARDS BEGAN A DASH INTO ALSACE. TWO DAYS LATER THEY REACHED ALTIRKIRCH, AND ON THE 9TH OCCUPIED MULHAUSEN. THEY ENCOUNTERED STIFF OPPOSITION, AND ON THE 11TH, WHEN GREAT MASSES OF GERMANS APPEARED IN THEIR FRONT, THE FRENCH, OUTNUMBERED, WERE FORCED TO ABANDON MULHAUSEN AND FALL BACK TOWARD THE FRONTIER.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

MEANWHILE, REPORTS OF THE GERMAN MOVEMENT THROUGH BELGIUM WERE COMING IN TO THE FRENCH HEADQUARTERS, BUT THE MAGNITUDE OF THE INVASION IN THE NORTH WAS NOT REALIZED. ON AUGUST 18, JOFFRE HURLED THE FIRST AND SECOND FRENCH ARMIES, LED BY GENERALS DUBAIL AND DE CASTELNAU, INTO ALSACE AND LORRAINE.

THE FOXES SHARE THEIR FEAST.

Reddy Fox led the hound that was chasing him far away. There, at a little brook, he broke his trail. The brook was shallow. He ran down the brook in the shallow water; then he climbed out on the opposite bank, ran a little distance and jumped back into the brook. Then he turned and went back up the brook. This time when he left it he did so with a series of long jumps. Then he trotted swiftly in a line that brought him back on the trail he had just come. He followed this back until finally he came to the big rock where he had left Mrs. Reddy. He barked softly as he drew near. There was an answering bark. So he knew that she had waited for him.

Meanwhile the dog was doing his best to work out Reddy's trail. He followed it straight to where Reddy had entered the brook. There, of course, the scent ended. The dog worked his way down the brook on other bank. So it was that at last he came to the place where Reddy had left the water and run down the bank for a short distance. Once more he began to bay as he followed the trail. But it was only for a short distance; then it ended once more in the brook. But the dog was sure now in which direction Reddy had gone and so he kept on hunting down the brook. You see, he was completely fooled.

"Did you get a turkey?" Mrs. Reddy asked eagerly as soon as Reddy was near enough.

Reddy nodded. "Yes, my dear," said he, "I got one. And it was so big that it was all I could do to get it under the barn. We'll go straight back there now. We'll have just about time to eat that turkey before daylight. If worst comes to worst, we can spend the day under the barn and no one will be the wiser. When that dog gets back home, he'll be too tired to poke around much, if any. There'll be nothing to fear from him."

So they trotted straight back to the farm where the turkeys lived. Every-

DIXIE 'BIG TEN' MOVE GATHERERS BACKING

Appointment of a commissioner of athletics for the Southern Conference would meet with hearty indorsement from the public. Installation of a supreme official similar in powers to Major John Griffith, of the Western Conference, would be a remedy for many ills.

Such a commissioner would determine all questions of eligibility of players. This, to the least, would greatly lighten the work of the overworked executive committee and would do much toward obliterating "political" lines within the organization.

Such a commissioner would appoint officials for all major games when school officials cannot agree, according to published plans. That certainly would remove many objectionable features of the present cumbersome haphazard system of appointing officials.

OFFICIALS FAVOR MOVE.

For instance, a conference commissioner in appointing officials for major games undoubtedly would select his men for their efficiency for certain duties. He would not have heavy, slow-moving men as referees. Each man would be assigned for phases of work to which most suited.

A commissioner might even see the wisdom of having competent officials work in teams throughout the season, an obviously excellent idea.

The officials themselves favor such a move and those of the profession who attend the conference meeting in Baton Rouge will urge his appointment. It will relieve their minds of a deal of worry in arranging their schedules and will result in a better distribution of work.

PLEASE SPLIT IT.

H. J. Stegeman, director of athletics at the University of Georgia, and a most valued staff writer for The Atlanta Constitution, stated in a recent article that all the agitation for a division of the conference had come from newspapermen.

A smaller, more compact conference, he said, was an arrangement conceived and urged by sporting editors in order to lighten their work and make the determination of a championship easier.

Granting for the sake of argument that all this is true, what more worthy reason could be found for a secession movement within the conference? Why NOT make lighter the work of sports editors? Why NOT make a championship easier of determination?

TAKING ISSUE.

Mr. Stegeman says that the colleges do not consider that the conference was formed and administered to determine a champion in any sport over which it has jurisdiction, which undoubtedly is true.

Yet one never heard of an institution refusing a championship when clearly won, nor failing to include such an inscription on its gold footballs that year. The championship issue each year is a by-product of intercollegiate competition. It concerns the public keenly. It entrances the boys who play.

It certainly is the problem of the educators themselves to keep the broader principles of athletics constantly before the boys who participate. In this the newspapers always are glad to co-operate. But the newspapers also must serve the public who, after all, is the man behind it all.

All which is prefatory to voicing in clarion, two-column, 10-point tones: PLEASE, GENTLEMEN, DIVIDE THE CONFERENCE INTO TWO SMALLER UNITS to facilitate control, to bring close geographical and natural rivals into closer contact.

That would result in keener public interest and a consequent increase in funds for development of the broader athletic programs of the institutions.

GRIDIRON REPARTEE.

Permit the author to turn to the more interesting phase of football, so we all can smile.

Boys says things in the heat of a football game that they would not say off the field. They indulge in rare repartee sometimes.

This story came out of the Alabama-Georgia game: "Catfish" Smith had just tackled an Alabama back very hard. One of the Alabama sophomore players shook his finger at "Catfish" as he got up and said: "I'll get you that same way yet."

"Catfish" looked up at the clock on the bulletin board on the Birmingham field and said slowly: "Well, I'm a sophomore, too; and you've got just 27 minutes and two years to do it."

Naturally, as the story came from close to home, the reply of the Alabamian was not told me. But I'll declare I can't think of what he could have said.

Marquette Five Chocolate Wins Cards Wisconsin Bout by Kayo

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 10.—Scheduling of a basketball game between Marquette University and the University of Wisconsin, to be played at Madison, February 11, has been announced by Athletic Directors Conrad M. Jennings and George Little, of the two schools.

The 1930 game will mark the first facing contest between Marquette and Wisconsin since 1926, when the Badgers invaded the Milwaukee auditorium and defeated the Hilltoppers in the closing minutes of play after trailing most of the way.

OHIO CHARGED WITH PAYING STAR MONTHLY

Athlete's Father Is Purported To Have Made Accusation.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The Cedar Rapids Gazette-Republican today printed an affidavit made by Jess Blake, railroad company official charging that the father of Elmer Marek, former Ohio State University basketball star, had paid him $200 a month for the most money in selecting a school. The father denied making the statement.

The paper printed the elder Marek's denial beside Blake's affidavit. The affidavit, which Blake said he made "in the interest of fair play and clean sport" declared: "I further state that during the year of 1924, the father of Elmer Marek said that his son was going to enroll in the school offering the most money. The University of Wisconsin, he said, had made an offer, but the best proposition came from Ohio State. Elmer probably will go there and expects to get $200 per month."

Another affidavit crediting Frank Baker, Northwestern University football player, with saying he had never paid for a meal since he enrolled at Northwestern, has been made by Charles D. Hadlock, of Chicago, the Gazette-Republican said. Hadlock said in the affidavit Baker told him he got his meal checks from an Evanston restaurant like other patrons, but turned them in without paying for them.

Elmer Marek Denies Charge.

AKRON, Ohio, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Elmer Marek, former Ohio State basketball star, today denied charges that he had been paid $200 a month for playing football with Ohio State.

Marek said he had not been paid anything and said that he did not relish being bothered by sports writers regarding the charges which are said to have been based upon an alleged statement made by his father. Marek has played professional football here for two seasons, although a knee injury kept him on the bench most of the campaign just passed.

Baker Charge Also Denied.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Charges that Frank Baker received free meals or was subsidized in any way for playing on Northwestern's football team were investigated and found groundless by the Western conference faculty committee several months ago, Kenneth J. Wilson, Northwestern's director of athletics, said today.

BULLDOGS PLAY J. P. C. QUINTET

Game Will Open Georgia's Season—A. A. C. Reds Next in Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 10.—The University of Georgia basketball team will open their season on Tuesday night, December 17, against the Jewish Progressive Club Reds from Atlanta. And the second game of the season will follow on Saturday when the A. A. C. Reds meet the Georgia Bulldogs in Woodruff hall, according to Assistant Coach George Kern, who has charge of the varsity in the absence of Coach H. J. Stegeman, who is attending the conference meeting at Baton Rouge.

The Bulldogs schedule has not been given out to date, but it is known that Red and Black players will meet Furman in Greenville on January 1, and the University of South Carolina in Columbia on January 3-4. Captain Henry Palmer and Tommy Moran were the two football players who reported for court practice today. Vernon Smith is expected to report tomorrow. The football players will be allowed several days of rest before they are allowed to scrimmage.

The Bulldogs should have a well-rounded team this year, with four of their six last year lettermen back and ready for work, and a long list of reserves and sophomores anxious for a place on the team. The lettermen who have returned are Captain Palmer, at forward; Martin Reader and Anderson at the guard positions. Porter Frye, Strickland and Blumenthal are the available reserves for center positions.

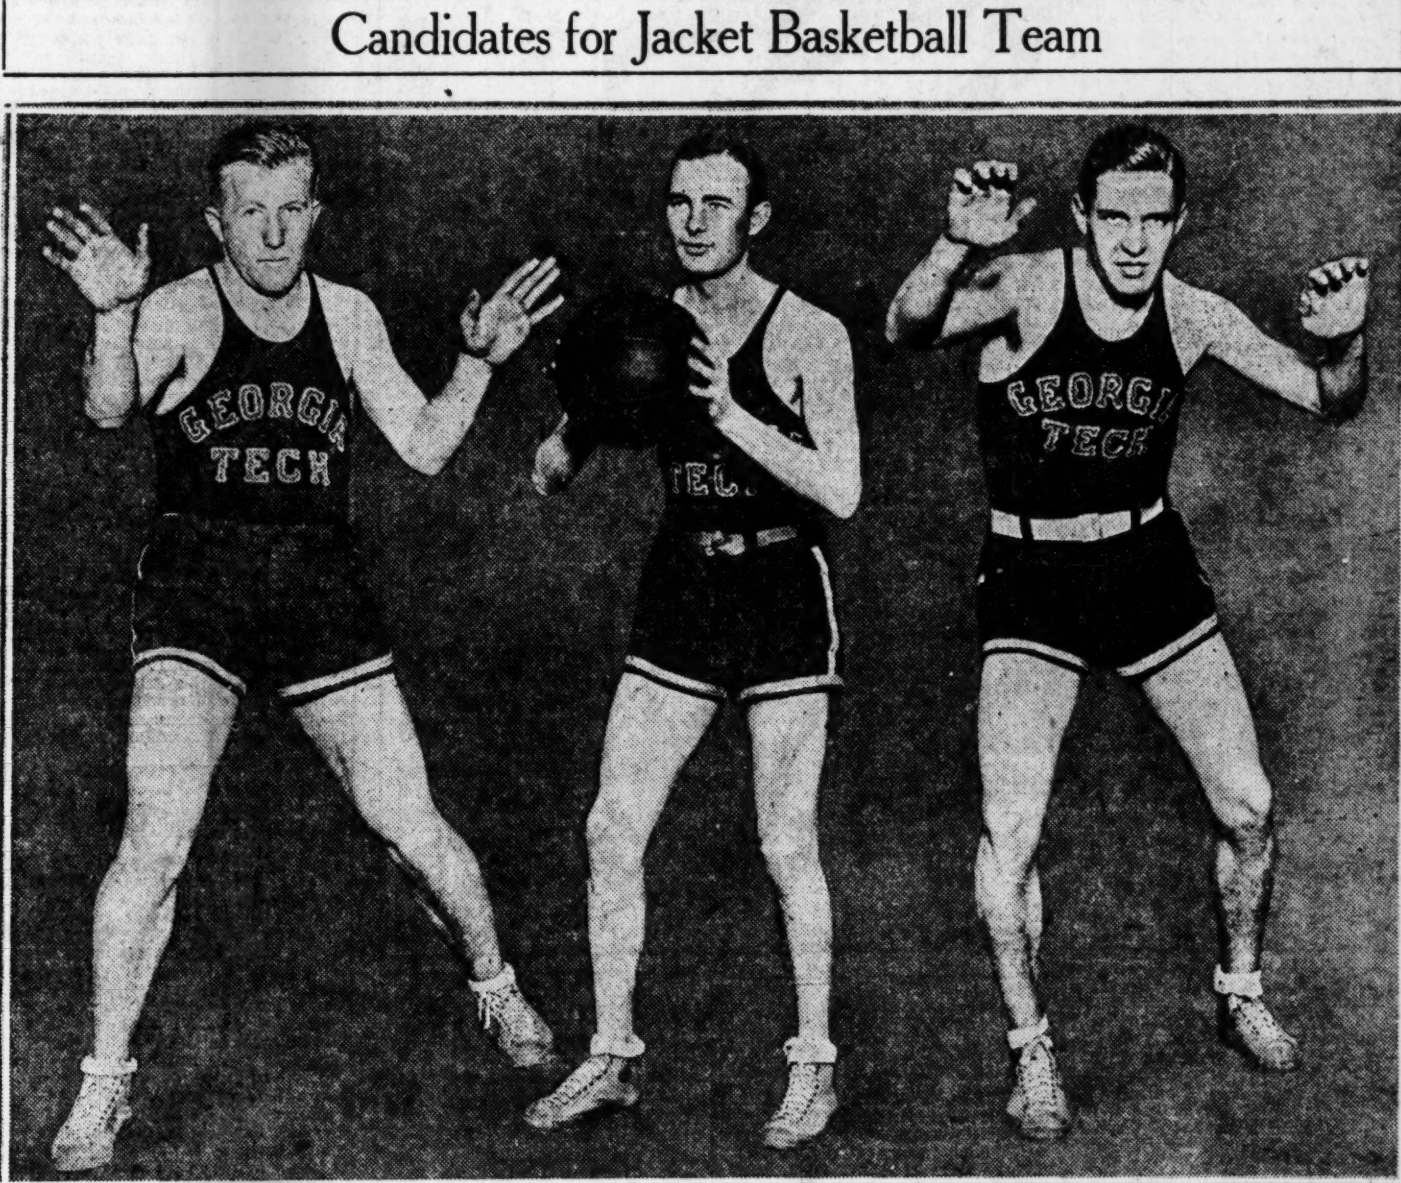

The most promising forwards from the reserves and last year's first team are Tommy Moran, quarterback on the football team; Clyde Staniel, "Tap" Terrell and Hoke Hill. "Whitie" Bryant and Buster Benson are the best looking guards on the reserve material.

'Four Riveters' Hang Up Record

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 10.—Purdue's "Four Riveters"—Ralph Welch, Glen Harmon, Alex Yunevich and John White—have set a mark for average gains in Big Ten games that reveals clearly why the Bolleymakers won the conference title by one of the most decisive margins in years. In five Big Ten games, the regular Bolleymaker backfield quartet carried the ball from scrimmage a total of 234 times for a gain of 1,053 yards, or an average of slightly over 4.5 yards per attempt.

Glen Harmon leads the pack both in ground-gaining and average gains. Harmon carried the ball 90 times for a total gain of 458 yards, or an average of 5.1 yards per attempt. Yunevich was next in line with 77 tries for a total gain of 322 yards, or an average of 4.2 yards, while Welch chucked up 288 yards in 87 tries for an average gain of exactly four yards.

Boland Misses Chance To Team With Stump

Invited To Play on Same Team Here New Year's, Joe Must Be at School.

By Ralph McGill.

For seven years Joe Boland and Stumpy Thomason have been rivals—and mutual admirers.

It began when they entered rival schools in Atlanta, Boland choosing Boys' High and Stumpy casting his lot with Tech High.

When the time came to enter college Boland chose the University of Georgia. Stumpy entered Georgia Tech.

For three years they were rivals as they starred for their respective teams. And then the time came when it looked as if they might get together on one team. The all-star football game was arranged for January 1 and both Stumpy and Boland were invited to play on the southern team.

Boland wanted with a mighty longing to pass the ball back to Stumpy. Thomason just once before he quit football. He wanted to be on the same team with him, to shoot him the ball back with a long, clean spiral and see "The Mighty Atom" start around end with it.

But it wasn't to be. Boland had planned to enter the University of Chicago medical school last fall. He returned to Georgia to finish his football, but must be at class on New Year's Day at Chicago.

The all-star football game was out. "I wish I could play for the Shrine charities," said Boland. "I wanted to and I appreciated the invitation asking me to play. But I can't. I have to be in Chicago."

"I wanted to pass the ball back to Stumpy just once. He and I have always been great friends. He has always been a fine lineman and a great center," he said. "I am sorry we can't play together on the same team on New Year's Day."

The charity game is catching the public's fancy. The long list of stars who will play in the game, in which teams from each division of the conference will contest, should provide some spectacular football.

It will include all the major stars of the conference except Boland and Tony Holm, the latter being in Alabama's great fullback. He will play with an All-Eastern team in the west.

Georgia Tech has turned over the athletic office to the officials in charge of the game and nine tickets will be handled by that office. Reservations may be made there at this time.

Thousands of Shriners will be here for the game, including some of the drill teams and the bands. The pageantry and color of the crowd will be picturesque enough to attract even those who do not care for football.

For football fans it should prove the finest thing ever offered in the south, so far as all-star attractions are concerned.

Gold Mint broke fast and went to the front at the start with Extreme holding second place and Uncommon Gold, third. At the far turn, Uncommon Gold was rushed to the front through a narrow opening at the rail and drew away to win by a length and a half. Bramabiau came with a rush to take the place by a head from Gold Mint with Extreme four lengths back. The winner paid $12.10 for $2 in the mutuels.

M. Knight, leading jockey of the year, registered his 137th victory of the season when he booted home Flying Ambassador, a winner in the first race.

TECH QUINTET WORKING HARD

Coach Mundorff Putting Boys Through Stiff Daily Sessions.

By Herb Clark.

With the varsity quintet driving with all possible speed for the opening of the season on or close to December 25, Coach Bill Fincher, mentor of the freshman basketball team at Georgia Tech, issued his first call to practice Tuesday, and plans to have his squad report for their first drill Thursday.

The varsity court crew has been hard at work for almost two weeks, drilled his charges through all practices until that of Monday afternoon on the fundamentals of the game.

Mundorff, with plenty of material on hand—most of it experienced—hopes to tack up a good record during the coming season. He has started driving for that record by putting the Jackets through long drills on handling the ball, working around the court and into the basket, and in shooting the short shots accurately.

He held two short scrimmages last week to determine just how much of his teachings had been absorbed.

Monday he started in earnest. Splitting the squad into two groups of almost equal strength, he held two scrimmages Monday and Tuesday, and said Tuesday that the same general schedule of practice would be followed from that time on. If work will do it, the Jackets will present a smooth-running quintet.

With four forwards and two guards from last season's team back and with Marce and Brooke, also guards, scheduled to report for practice before long, Mundorff has concentrated on finding a man to take over the duties of center. With Bill Tate and Jim Crowley, of last season's reserves, and Ted Raines, a graduate from the ranks of the freshman team, fighting for the place, he feels that he should be able to solve his problem before the Jackets go into their regular season.

Ernie Sullivan and Jack Warner have been working well as a pair of guards and may make the going tough for the Marce-Brooke team when they report. Sullivan was a reserve guard last year, while Warner was a forward. He has been shifted by Mundorff and is taking easily to his new duties.

With the advent of the freshmen Mundorff expects his scrimmages to become harder each day. From all reports the material for the yearling quintet is of a high class, and as soon as Fincher has taught the boys a few tricks they will be sent against the varsity. If reports be true, the varsity will find its path clogged with thorns.

Double Wingback Formation Most Powerful Offense, Says Roper

GLENN WARNER FIRST DEvised STRONG SYSTEM

Effectiveness of Manuever Lies in Fact That Attack Is Spread.

By W. W. Roper.

Princeton Football Coach.
(Copyright, 1929, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.)
I have repeatedly been asked the strongest form of attack in football. While often teams with a weaker basic attack are successful over teams with a better devised system of offense because of the manner in which the weaker attack is executed, there is no doubt that other things being equal certain kinds of attack have more possibilities than others.

I believe the double wing back style of offense, other things being equal, is the strongest form of attack. This style of offense was devised by Glenn Warner, who has made several valuable contributions to offensive football. I believe the double wing attack is much superior to the single wing back of offense.

TWO FORMS.

There are two forms of double wing back offense. In discussing this style of attack it is important to understand the difference between them. The diagrams here show the different ways the double wing back offense is used.

Students Strike When Coach Quits

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Dec. 10.—Four hundred WilliamSPORT High school students went on strike today, refusing to return to their studies unless Sol Wolf, head football coach, was offered a contract "more acceptable" than the one he has rejected.

MERCER BEARS WORK ON COURT

MACON, Dec. 10.—With five returning lettermen and a galaxy of freshmen stars from last season, the Mercer basketball team has begun with Mercer looming as one of the foremost contenders in the S. I. A. A. Prospects for a better than average freshman quintet are also good.

Indications are that the Bear team will be built around "Baggy" Mullard, veteran of three seasons, and "Peggy" Campbell, letterman of last year and former all-American high school captain, forwards, and "Yank" Wright, veteran running guard. Jody Matt, Ethelridge and Wilks will also be out for forward.

For the center position Coach Lake Russell will have Tombs Mobley, Jenna Athletic Club star; Emerson Bell and Billy Deraght, sensational players for Charlie Morgan's championship freshman team of 1927. McGinty and Conroy will also be out from last year's freshman team.

Last year the Mercer Bears played 25 games and won 20 of them, to complete one of the most successful seasons in recent years.

Four Hard Games Within 12 Days

Among the heroes of the gridiron might be mentioned Pat Miller's team at Wake Forest College. The Baptists this year scheduled twelve games, and four of the hardest of the twelve were played in a 12-day period.

On November 16 the little Carolina team visited Annapolis and played the Navy, losing 16 to 0. But on Tuesday every man was in shape for the 0-to-0 game with Presbyterian College of South Carolina. On the following Saturday Wake Forest played Duke and on the following Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, the Baptists played Mercer at Asheville.

Four games in twelve days—and three of them on the road!

Retires.

MONTREAL, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Jane Bell, of Toronto, a member of the Canadian women's Olympic track team in 1928 and winner of many national and international honors, has decided to give up running. The announcement of her retirement came yesterday through Myrtle Cook, another Olympic star.

Miss Cook, who is forming a team to compete in the Millrose games in New York in February, said Miss Bell had refused to join the team because she was retiring from the track.

Bucs Get Suhr.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP) The Pittsburgh Pirates have secured First Baseman Gus Suhr, of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league. First Baseman Earl Sheeley was given in exchange for the coast player, the Pirate management said.

Gabby Must Work.

Gabby Hartnett will have to be the good for 1930—if he expects to get a contract. The catcher with the dead throwing arm won't be signed until he shows that he has recovered from the ailment of last year.

Fair Enough.

The Winston-Salem club of the Piedmont league has a good deal on park rental for 1930. The club pays taxes, insurance and upkeep and ten per cent of the profits—if there are any profits.

CHEROKEE LOOP IN 3-WAY TIE

Peachtree Christian Wins and Tangles Race—Central Quint Loses.

With Bobbie Barber leading the attack, the Peachtree Christian defeated Central Presbyterian, 14-0, on the Wesley Memorial court Tuesday night in the Cherokee League series. Miss Barber played one of the best games on the court this season and scored 11 points of her team's total.

The result of this game threw the league race into a three-way tie as Western Heights Baptists, champions of last year, won their tilt easily from Associate Reform Presbyterian, 29 to 5, and Peachtree Christian had lost but one of five league games played. Miss Dilly was the leading point maker for Western Heights.

Although Alpha Class used all its reserves it failed to stem the attack of the J. O. C. Class and was on the small end of a 21-11 score at the final whistle. Misses Homes and Norman playing best on offense. Gordon Street Baptist won its second game of the season from Inman Park Baptist, 10 to 7. This game was very close, the loser leading throughout the entire first half.

Joy Class Is Easy Winner.
J. O. Y. Class continues to set the pace for the Cherokee league teams and had little difficulty in disposing of the Pattillo Memorial five in the opening game of this week series, winning 22 to 8. "Speed" Rogers was the big gunner for the victors while Johnson played best for the losers.

Decatur Presbyterian broke into the win column at the expense of the Joy Class of Capitol View Baptist in a mid-week, Schley Howard, Jr., playing a stellar game for the winners, with Pinesholde doing best work for the losers. Calvary Aces played a hard but losing game to the Joy Class, losing 13 to 10. The most experienced basketballers of North-west Atlanta. The final score was 24-18.

Horace Smith was the big factor in North Atlanta Baptist's win over the Oakhurst Presbyterians, who fought bravely to stave off defeat but were unable to keep up with the running with many shots from long range. Fagan played well at guard for the winners.

FORWARD PASS FIRST USED FOR DEFENSIVE

Intent of Air Attack Is Primarily To Drive Defense Back.

By Howard Jones,

Southern California Coach.
In stating my theory on successful use of the forward pass in football it is my desire to give readers a different perspective than they obtain in watching this play.

Primarily the forward pass was instituted to offset the preponderance of defensive strength resulting from the abolishment of mass play and the permission of offensive players to help their ball carriers by use of hands or body.

The intent of the forward, then, has been to force the defensive halfbacks to play from 8 to 10 yards behind the line of scrimmage, whereas formerly they played within 2 yards.

It is my thought that the forward pass attack employed from a semi-punt formation is the most consistently successful. This formation is the same as for the regular punt, except that the kicker or passer plays 6 or 7 yards behind center instead of 10 yards. This type of formation is one the late Percy Hightower used at Harvard. Fielding Yost has been using it at Michigan for years.

The forward passer stations 6 or 7 yards behind the line can receive ample protection, so necessary in successful passing. This position also affords opportunity for kicking, and compels the safety man or defensive quarterback to play considerably farther back than he ordinarily does against an offensive formation where all the backs are closer to the line of scrimmage.

From this same position the threat of an end run is always imminent. Eddy Mahan made a reputation at Harvard running from the position.

GREAT PASSER.
Aubrey Devine, Iowa, heralded as one of the great forward passers, executed his passes perfectly from this position.

An additional reason why forward passing from this type of formation has proved successful is because the passer can get a clearer vision of the receivers and defensive players and is not so apt to have passes intercepted.

When a passer plays close to the line as the ball is put in play and is compelled to look back to run as a forward pass, he is usually rushed so hard that he is virtually forced to throw to a determined point, and has no opportunity to observe defensive play movement.

Successful use of the forward pass depends much upon the deception employed both by thrower and receivers. Better it has been indicated that a forward pass play is probably a good forward passer can deceive a defense by threatening to throw to one receiver and then passing to another.

As a rule, a taller man has an advantage in passing, because his vision and observation cannot be blocked so easily by the defensive rushers. This does mean that a shorter man cannot be successful, but it is essential that he get his pass off much faster or use more distance for his protection.

BEST RECEIVERS.
It is only natural that taller men are better for receivers, because they are more easily spotted by the passer. And then, too, passes can be thrown a little higher to them. This feature alone makes it difficult for short defensive backs.

It is also important for receivers of forward passes so far as possible to receive the ball on the side which places their body between the ball and the defensive player attempting to cover them.

The forward pass has become a determining factor in the results of most important games. The uncertainties created by it have, no doubt, stimulated public interest.

Some coaches believe restrictions should be placed upon the underestimating use of the pass in last-minute desperate attempts to win.

A rule which would create a more severe penalty for failure to complete passes might be worth consideration. The rules today provide a penalty of 5 yards for the second and third incomplete passes in a series of downs.

In my opinion, a penalty of 15 yards for the third incomplete pass would not be too severe.

Two Scott Teams Are Undefeated.
First National bank and Installation Department of the Western Electric are the only teams to retain perfect records in the Scott League after the second round of play Tuesday night.

Western Electric Telephone and General Motors, two losers of last week, played the best game of the series this time the Telephones winning 20 to 16.

Power Company defeated Swift & Company in a good game, 31 to 19, taking the lead at the set and playing at an easy gait all the way. The old lineup that won the pennant last year was used.

First National pulled a surprise by defeating Gulf, 25 to 13, and W. E. Installations defeated Pullman, 26 to 12.

FORMER PUGS SHOW UP WELL AS MANAGERS

Ring Experience Great Help in Starting Youngsters Off Right.

By Robert Edgren.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Phil Schlossberg, who is developing Ernie Schauf, New Jersey heavyweight, ought to be able to make a champion. Schlossberg was a great boxer when in the navy many years ago. I remember seeing him box in a battle-ship in New York harbor, and he looked as good as any of the professionals of that day.

When Phil left the navy he took up fighting professionally, and made many a dent in the big fellows, although he was too light to get up among the champions. He was a tricky, shifty boxer with a strong chin. If he can drill the same fighting skill into Schauf he'll make some money.

A former good boxer ought to be the best kind of a manager for a coming fighter.

Dan Hickey, who came from Australia in the time of Bob Fitzsimmons and was Freddie Bob's best sparring partner for several years, made a world's light-heavyweight champion of Paul Bernbach, an amateur club wrestler.

KEARNS WAS ONE.
Jack Kearns, who brought Jack Dempsey up from nothing to the world's heavyweight championship, and who helped Dempsey develop the greatest hitting left hand since Jeffries' time by the simple trick of making Dempsey box his sparring partner.

George Blake, former fighter, who was boxing instructor at the Los Angeles Athletic Club, taught and developed two world's champions, Fidel LaBarba and Jackie Fields. Blake invented the style of fighting that would carry LaBarba into a fortune, and he made Jackie Fields the cleverest featherweight among all the amateurs.

While under Blake's direction Fields won the Olympic featherweight championship and Fidel LaBarba won the Olympic fly-weight title in the same Olympic games.

Fields took G. G. Rooney as a manager when he became a professional, and won the world's welterweight championship from Joe Dundee at Detroit under Rooney's direction. But he knew how to fight and was a cleverer as any professional when he left the amateurs.

CLEVER MAN.
Dan Morgan, who managed Jack Britton and made a world's welterweight champion of him, was a former fighter, and a clever one. The only trouble with Morgan as a fighter was that he had too much brains.

He preferred being a boxing general to being a boxing private. As manager he almost made a world's lightweight champion out of little southern paw Knockout Brown. Kayo was the most popular and talked of fighter in the country for a year or two, and probably if he hadn't had Dan Morgan as a manager he wouldn't have been heard of.

Jimmy Kelly, who once fought Morgan, managed many good fighters and taught them the tricks of the game as the old timers knew them.

Jim Jeffries, most powerful and invincible of all the heavyweight world's champions, tells the world that he got all his most useful ideas about fighting from DeWitt Van Court, who started him as a youngster in Los Angeles. Van Court was a famous boxer before Jeff's time.

IRON WORKER.
George Engel, who was a fighter, but working in the same iron works with Frank Klaus, taught Frank how to put up his hands and made him world's middleweight champion.

Tom O'Rourke, who had a few bouts the old fashioned London prize ring days, developed George Dixon and Joe Walcott, both world's champions.

The famous Jack McAuliffe, who retired undefeated lightweight champion of the world, made his start under direction of Billy Madden, a former prizefighter.

In my opinion, a manager who has brought out and managed Charlie Mitchell, who fought John L. Sullivan to a draw in heavyweight championship prizefight at Chantilly, France. And who has made a world's champion of Gus Rubin, who might have become world's champion if his early career hadn't clashed with that of a never bigger and more powerful youngster, Jim Jeffries.

TWO DEVELOPMENTS.
Tom Jones, who used to be called "The Battling Barber," developed Ad Golgast and Jess Willard as world champions.

Sam Fitzpatrick, a veteran from Australia, managed Jack Johnson on the way up.

Leo Flynn, manager of Dave Shade, claims that he was a fighter and fought in many states. Just a preliminary scrapper, but his experience started him as manager of fighters.

Some of the champions have developed great fighters without managing them. Jim Corbett had a protégé, George Green, who took the name Young Corbett, and George came near being a champion. The title class, Jim Jeffries coached Ad Wolcott when he was just a "comer." The greatest lightweight, Joe Gans, once told me that he learned all his boxing skill from Bob Fitzsimmons. Joe left a job in the Baltimore fish market to follow a show in which Bob Fitzsimmons was boxing all comers, studied Fitz right after night and last got up courage to introduce himself to Bob and ask for some advice. Recognizing the earnestness and intelligence of the young negro boxer Fitz tried him out and gave him such good advice that in following it Gans went to the top of the lightweight class.

Willie Brit, himself a remarkably clever amateur champion, developed his brother, Jim Y. Britt, as a fighter, and afterward handled Stanley Ketchel and added quite a bit of skill to the fighting ability that made Stanley one of the greatest of all the middleweight champions.

And it may be remembered that Jimmy Dunn, who could swing a tricky glove himself, brought out Johnny Kilbane, as clever a featherweight as ever held the title.

The trouble between the University of Detroit and Michigan State, after this year's football game, is blamed by Charles Dorais, Detroit coach, on drinking by students. He said: "If it is allowed to get a start it will ruin football."

Sington Tackle On All-Jewish Football Team

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(United News.)—Two football teams which could give earnest battles to any of the All-American selections already announced were chosen by the Boston Jewish Advocate and announced today.

The Jewish All-American, a yearly selection by the Advocate, contains the name of many a player selected by critics who based their choice on playing ability alone, and not, as the Advocate has done, on race as well as proficiency.

Art Davidowitz, Lehigh halfback, a leading eastern scorer; Benny Lou, California's great quarterback, and Nat Barragar, star Southern California guard, are among the nationally famous players included in the Jewish All-American.

The Jewish Advocate selections follow:

Yellow Jacket Eleven Honored at Luncheon by Rotary Club

Probe Is Asked For Texas Teams

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A resolution asking for a thorough investigation into athletic conditions in all Texas colleges and requesting the support of the public in an endeavor to find to what extent, if any, subsidizing of athletes exists in Texas was passed by the faculty committee of the Southwest conference at its annual meeting.

Prospects for a fourth senior athletic conference in the state was seen in the announcement yesterday by W. A. Jackson, faculty representative of Texas Tech, Lubbock, that envoys from five colleges would meet at Sweetwater on December 31 for the purpose of organizing a "Staked Plains conference."

A direct slap at postseason football was taken by the committee. A resolution, effective next year, was passed forbidding senior players who are eligible for spring sports participating in either the Dixie classic here, or in the east-west game on the Pacific coast.

Johnny Sisk Leads Marquette Scorers

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 10.—Johnny Sisk of Chicago, the Big Train sophomore back of the Marquette University football team this last season, was the high scorer for the year on the Golden Avalanche, according to a review of the 1929 statistics.

The Big Train scored 49 of Marquette's total of 118 points this season, by crossing the enemy goal line eight times and adding one point after touchdown.

Sisk had a great year as a sophomore and has received considerable mention as an all-Western and an all-American, along with Co-Captain Ken Radick, the Marquette right tackle. The Chicago back made runs of 15 and 50 yards for touchdowns against Lawrence; four yards across Grinnell's goal line; 82 and 62 yards to score twice on Iowa State; 10 yards to tie Detroit, and he ran back a kickoff 85 yards and intercepted a pass to go 50 yards for a pair of touchdowns on Kansas Aggies.

Tax Collectors Give Pros Break

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(United News.)—Professional golf players who travel about the country and abroad to compete in tournaments are authorized by law to deduct traveling expenses from gross income in computing their income tax liability.

Such was the opinion of C. W. Charest, general counsel of the internal revenue bureau, today in response to a request from a professional golfer as to what deductions are allowable in filling income tax returns. The golfer's identity was not made public.

Participating in golf tournaments for prize money Charest said, comes within the broad definition of a business recognized by the courts. For this reason he held all expenses incidental to such activity were properly deductible as a legitimate business expense.

Tigers to Receive Letters December 17

AUBURN, Ala., Dec. 10.—President Bradford Knapp has announced that all members of Auburn's 1929 football team will be awarded them on Tuesday, December 17, at a special convocation to be held in Langdon hall.

Students and faculty members recently elected to Phi Kappa Phi and the recent initiates of Tau Beta Pi will also be honored at this special convocation which will be known as Honor's convocation. This will also be the final meeting of the student body before they begin their annual exit home for the Christmas holidays.

By George Kirksey. NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(United News.)—Major league managers of the American and National leagues spent a quiet day at their separate meetings at the Hotel Commodore.

Almost nothing of importance was done. The league presidents, John Heydler, of the National, and E. S. Barnard, of the American, reported that they were working on the 1930 schedule, with a view of opening on April 15 and closing on September 28.

"LIVELY BALL." The National league discussed the "lively ball" and the majority agreed that it was "fast, perhaps too fast." Both leagues discussed the "chain store system" of ownership of ball clubs. The proposed new rule, calling for every club to file the agreements of purchases of another club with the Commissioner of the National Association, and the two league presidents, was discussed favorably. It will be passed at the joint meeting of the leagues Thursday. Heretofore there has been no record of the purchase of one club by another club.

President Barnard said he thought the solution to the "chain store system" was the universal draft.

The efforts of the Cleveland Indians to land Pitcher Dan Howley, of the Boston Red Sox fell through when the latter club turned down an offer of Joe Shute and $5,000. The New York Yankees are still dickering for Morris.

CRITZ ON BLOCK. Hughie Critz, Cincinnati second baseman, has been placed on the trading block, but manager Dan Howley is understood to be asking too much for the Reds' infielder.

Bill Carrigan, 1928 manager of the Boston Red Sox, was among the missing managers, which was taken to mean that he will not lead the Red Sox next season. His final decision, however, is not expected until next week.

Thirteen Cincinnati players, including Harry Hellman, obtained from Detroit on waiver, have signed their 1930 contracts, according to Manager Howley. Joe Stripp, third baseman, signed his contract today.

The National signed Ted McGrew, American association umpire. A resolution was passed in memory of the late Colonel A. C. Mills, third president of the National league. Cullen Cain was elected publicity director of the National league for three additional years.

Both leagues elected their 1930 board of directors. Frank Navin, of Detroit, was re-elected vice president of the American league.

HOMER RECORD. The National league broke all home-run records last season with an increase of 145 over 1928, President Heydler's report showed.

The umpires began to rub the gloss off the home-run season and the result of this process was a 45 per cent decrease in homers during the last half, said Heydler's report.

The National league used 35,980 baseballs last season. The official paid attendance last season was 4,325,713, the second best the league has ever had, falling short of 1927 by only a trifle. The first half of the season was the best the league has ever known. Chicago played to a few less than 1,500,000 at home and set a new league record for home attendance.

Neither league discussed the broadcasting of games, but this matter is expected to come up before the joint meeting Thursday.

League Watches Sox Rebuilding The American league is sitting up and taking notice of the activities in behalf of the Chicago White Sox's campaign for 1930. The league is interested because it looks like the return of the good old days when Chicago turned out big crowds and visiting clubs made money.

Charley Comiskey has returned to take active charge of things and things have been done that meet with the approval of the other seven American league clubs. The signing of Donie Bush was the first and the buying of Smead Jolley was the second.

Other players have been bought but Jolley's acquisition was most important for the Sox needed punch and Jolley will help to make it.

Bush's attitude towards the bad boy of the club, Art Shires, means another valuable player for the Sox. Art is forgiven and gets a new start and under Bush he should be one of the league's stars.

The White Sox are going after the honors. Not since the scandal of 1919 tore down a good team have prospects been so bright.

Of late years the Cubs have outdrawn the Sox by a wide margin. There was a time when the Pale Hose were the toast of the town.

BIG LEAGUES PLAN TO OPEN, CLOSE EARLIER

First Day of Annual Meeting of Majors Passes Quietly.

By George Kirksey. NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(United News.)—Major league managers of the American and National leagues spent a quiet day at their separate meetings at the Hotel Commodore.

Almost nothing of importance was done. The league presidents, John Heydler, of the National, and E. S. Barnard, of the American, reported that they were working on the 1930 schedule, with a view of opening on April 15 and closing on September 28.

"LIVELY BALL." The National league discussed the "lively ball" and the majority agreed that it was "fast, perhaps too fast." Both leagues discussed the "chain store system" of ownership of ball clubs. The proposed new rule, calling for every club to file the agreements of purchases of another club with the Commissioner of the National Association, and the two league presidents, was discussed favorably. It will be passed at the joint meeting of the leagues Thursday. Heretofore there has been no record of the purchase of one club by another club.

President Barnard said he thought the solution to the "chain store system" was the universal draft.

The efforts of the Cleveland Indians to land Pitcher Dan Howley, of the Boston Red Sox fell through when the latter club turned down an offer of Joe Shute and $5,000. The New York Yankees are still dickering for Morris.

CRITZ ON BLOCK. Hughie Critz, Cincinnati second baseman, has been placed on the trading block, but manager Dan Howley is understood to be asking too much for the Reds' infielder.

Bill Carrigan, 1928 manager of the Boston Red Sox, was among the missing managers, which was taken to mean that he will not lead the Red Sox next season. His final decision, however, is not expected until next week.

Thirteen Cincinnati players, including Harry Hellman, obtained from Detroit on waiver, have signed their 1930 contracts, according to Manager Howley. Joe Stripp, third baseman, signed his contract today.

The National signed Ted McGrew, American association umpire. A resolution was passed in memory of the late Colonel A. C. Mills, third president of the National league. Cullen Cain was elected publicity director of the National league for three additional years.

Both leagues elected their 1930 board of directors. Frank Navin, of Detroit, was re-elected vice president of the American league.

HOMER RECORD. The National league broke all home-run records last season with an increase of 145 over 1928, President Heydler's report showed.

The umpires began to rub the gloss off the home-run season and the result of this process was a 45 per cent decrease in homers during the last half, said Heydler's report.

The SPOTLIGHT Grantland Rice On the Mexican Gridiron.

It may interest a number of the few million football fans now blocking traffic in the United States that football got away to a running start—also to a kicking and passing start—in the land south of the Rio Grande.

The team from the University of Mexico made amazing progress in a short time and there is every indication this progress will be increased next fall with the foundation already laid. The following comment from an observer in Mexico City is worth recording:

"This year, as you know, football crossed the Rio Grande. International intercollegiate football got under way. There were two games with college teams from the United States—the first with Louisiana College, October 5, and the second with Mississippi College, November 20. The scores of these two games tell little. The chief result was that these international games established a significant contact between American and Mexican universities—here you have such men as President Emilio Portes Gil, Dr. Cottingham, president of Louisiana College, and Dr. Provine, president of Mississippi College, agreeing that these games were probably contributing more profoundly to international amity than any other agencies working to that end. The importance of international intercollegiate football games may be taken for granted. Is not this aspect of such contests worth mentioning in any review of the season?"

Fine Sportsmanship. The two games were played with singular sportsmanship. Dr. Charles C. Stroud, of Louisiana State Normal, who refereed the Louisiana College-University of Mexico game—a referee of twenty-five years' experience—said to me he had never refereed a more sportsmanlike contest. Professor Metzner, of the University of Texas, who refereed the Mississippi College-University of Mexico game, voiced similar praise of the ethical side of football in Mexico. Reginald D. Root, of Yale, was, as you probably know, the coach of the University of Mexico team this year. The team developed amazingly. Here was the most extraordinary triumph of its season—it completed twenty-three out of twenty-eight forward passes in the game, November 20, with Mississippi College. Is this not a record in American football?"

"Another feature, this I submit, which merits mention in any review of the football season. Roman, halfback, did the passing. Landu, Eludory and Miranda received the passes. Root, of course, gave the team the plays. A Latin professor at Yale, I understand, evolved the pass formation that succeeded repeatedly against Mississippi.

"I hope you will be able to mention especially Roman and Landu. Roman threw with extraordinary accuracy and coolness. Landu repeatedly caught the ball surrounded by Mississippi backfielders. Landu is 6 feet 3 inches tall. He plays center on the university basketball team. He plays right end on the football team. He has many of the qualities of an unusual end. He is the fiercest tackler on the university eleven. In the Louisiana game, covering a punt, he dropped Harkness, the Louisiana quarter (a back far above the average) for a three-yard loss—dropped him flat on his back with a flying tackle.

Star End. "If you could mention Landu among the better ends of the season you would not only give a fine player his due, but give football in Mexico a big impetus.

"Another splendid player on the eleven was Estanol, the center. He outplayed his Louisiana opponent; he gave Captain Murphey, of Mississippi, reputedly one of the best centers in the south, a fine battle. Murphey praised him highly to me.

"You will be pleased, I know, to learn that in 1930 the University of Mexico eleven will go to the United States. It will play Mississippi College, at Jackson, about November 20, and Spring Hill College, at Mobile, Ala., a week later. It will also play three games here with American colleges, including one with Louisiana College."

It would be a doubly interesting phase of the all-American situation if a few years from now the final selections would be labeled: "All-American and All-Mexican Football Team for 1935." From the fine spirit Mexican players have shown in their first year this is far from being an impossible turn.

TECH FRIENDS AND PLAYERS HAVE BIG TIME

Boys Receive Presents—Stumpy Given Another Bear at Dinner.

By Ed Danforth. Atlanta Rotarians, always the perfect sportsmen and hosts, gave their annual luncheon yesterday to the Georgia Tech football team at the Capital City Club. Win or lose, first or last in the list, the Yellow Jackets for years have been feted here by Rotarians. There is a sincerity about the function that places the team apart from its games won and lost and on the basis of an organization of who and what is proud.

Coach W. A. Alexander, philosophically humorous in his few words, said:

ALEX SPEAKS. "We always appreciate this Rotary luncheon because it is a demonstration of regard not based on our season record. We had better enjoy this lunch for it looks like invitations to dine this winter will be few and far between. All is quiet along the luncheon front now.

"A man met me on the street yesterday and said, 'I want to congratulate you and your team.' " "For what?" I asked. "For finishing the season," he replied.

"Whether we win them all or just merely finish the season, the Rotary Club always gives us a party and we deeply appreciate it."

SOUVENIRS. The team sat at the traditional round table. In front of each plate were piled numerous souvenirs. President Billy Wardlaw turned the banquet over to George Marchmont, president of the National Georgia Tech Alumni Association. The Yellow Jacket orchestra played stirring numbers. Jake Harris led the fun program, a feature of which was the presentation to Stumpy Thomason of a baby bear, stuffed with yellow fur and a white ribbon.

Perd Kaufman and Joe Rhodes superintended the drawing for prizes. Miss Helen Trotter, a single act from the Capitol, and The DuPonts, an act from the Georgia, were assisted by Adolph Verde at the piano, were noisily received.

SAME GOOD TIME. The party in fact was no whit different from the one last year when the boys were fixing to steam away to California.

And, finally, Rev. N. R. High Moor, rector of St. Luke's, told the boys that they had won the profound respect of every one of their followers by playing hard and losing and coming right back the next week and playing just as hard again. And the speaker closed with a warm, graceful tribute to the late Fuzzy Woodruff.

The young men of Georgia Tech left the luncheon realizing that, after all, all was not lost and that maybe they had done right well and that certainly they had one army of friends and admirers.

CONFERENCE POLICIES

Rivers and Harbors Congress Meets at Capital for Discussion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The national waterway policy, both in general scope and local phases, was reviewed today before the twenty-fifth rivers and harbors congress.

Representative Wilson, of Louisiana, presided at the opening of the annual gathering, which was held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Jefferson. The annual report of the National Waterway Commission was presented by its president, Mr. J. H. Johnson.

Patrick J. Hurley, in his first address as secretary of war, urged completion of the Mississippi system within five years, completion of the inter-coastal system within ten years; speedy development of lower Mississippi flood control, and continued development of harbors and shoreward waterways. He enumerated conditions to be met before the government turns over its large lines to private capital.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, said "Our Canadian brothers are stalling with regard to the Great Lakes waterway development."

This statement, made in an address before the congress, was challenged at a subsequent luncheon of the Michigan delegation, where representatives of both the United States and Canada predicted a "dead-end" for forward by Canada within 60 days.

Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, and Representative Swing, of California, speaking to the effect of the proposed substitution of a reservoir system on the tributaries of the Mississippi for the levee system of flood control which has been recommended by the army engineers.

Swing attacked the army levee policy, and charged that Colonel William Kelley, chairman of the reservoir board, had not examined single proposed reservoir site when he recommended against it.

Representative William E. Hull, Illinois, said that the proposed waterway would give a greater farm relief than all the legislation congress will ever pass. He denied that the proposed river development was for the level of the Great Lakes, and pronounced it "a pity" that lake states were opposing "the great bread-basket states."

Major General Lytle Brown, chief of the army engineers, said that Mississippi flood control must be considered as "emergency work" to be done as quickly as finances afford.

Owen D. Young Champions Actual Investment as Basis For Public Utility Rates

Stand of Electrical Head Surprises I. C. C. Since It Is in Direct Opposition to Big Business.

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON, United News Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(United News.)—Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, surprised the senate interstate commerce committee today by advocating "actual investment" as the fairest basis for rate-making by public utility corporations.

His position was in direct conflict with the views of most "big business" executives, who claim "the cost of production" as the proper basis for valuation purposes. It was the second time in two days Young has startled the committee with his views. Yesterday he recommended a giant monopoly of American telegraphic service under government regulation.

Another surprise today was testimony by Admiral Gary T. Grayson, personal physician to the late President Wilson, that Wilson had asked him at the Paris peace conference to get in touch with Admiral Bullard, director of naval communications, to deliver an important message to Young. Grayson's testimony was to substantiate Young's contention that the Radio Corporation of America was formed at the request of President Wilson to save for America radio patents which would otherwise have gone to foreign powers.

Grayson testified he did not know the contents of Wilson's message to Young, but said he knew there was considerable talk about the radio situation at the peace conference. Young's declaration on valuation came during a debate with Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, on fair profits for utilities. In the long run, Young said, actual investment is a fairer basis for rate-making than "cost of production."

He also said he thought 8 percent a fair return for a utility to earn. This much is necessary, he said, in order to command capital and able personnel.

The financier repeated his assertion of yesterday that he would rather see the government take over the cable and radio facilities of American companies engaged in international business than see them continue to fight with them in competition with foreign monopolies.

CHARLES SCHWAB SEES 'Buddie' of Paul Redfern Believes Lost Flier Alive

Steel Magnate Tells Radio Listeners Outlook Is Bright.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Charles M. Schwab tapped on the chest of American industry tonight and pronounced it sound.

The steel magnate, in an address broadcast by radio from the annual meeting of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, cast a backward glance at the "Wall Street affair" and the subsequent condemnations of President Hoover for two years in building the country's business leaders, and then looked forward toward a "wholesome expansion of business without the evils of artificial stimulation."

Mr. Schwab declared that steel's three biggest customers—the automobile, railroad and building industries—seemed to justify a healthy outlook. Besides the country's normal growth, which he believed the stock market depression could not seriously retard, he saw in the replacement factor in these primary industries alone a very substantial market for themselves and for steel.

"Industry generally, the machinery of production," he said, "is better equipped and more intelligently managed than at any time in the past. Owing to long continued good railroad service and the ability of manufacturers to get their needs promptly filled, there are no disturbing stocks of goods or raw materials. Management in the meanwhile has become increasingly better able to transact production to current demand."

Moreover, and this is the most important aspect there is today, a greater and more widespread recognition on the part of all concerned, stockholders, management, labor and government, that our high standards of living constitute the bulwark of our prosperity and that the purchasing power of the people who have our goods and services be maintained.

Production of steel this year, Mr. Schwab said, will probably exceed the 1929 production by 10 per cent.

With four of the leading members of the nation's "Big Six," Robert H. Jones, newly appointed lieutenant governor, Capitol theater actors and "Baron" Eric Von Derga as guests and entertainers, the new corporation of the Kiwanis club at the Ansley at noon Tuesday provided a number of surprises for the membership. For a time it appeared that the business of the club was to be a picnic, but the members continued to dig for coal.

But the nationalists made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers and the business of the club was to be a picnic, but the members continued to dig for coal.

phone that Sigwald Anderson, one of the missing defendants in the "Long Island liquor ring" conspiracy case, had been arrested last night with five other men aboard a schooner loaded with $300,000 worth of liquor.

The schooner, the Diesel-driven Mary Mother Elizabeth, was formerly the Amaranth, one of the vessels operated by the liquor ring, of which Rudolph Wylk was the alleged head. Wylk was convicted two weeks ago and last week was sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta and fined $10,000.

Anderson, alias Johnson, was in charge of the Wylk and the other members of the ring, but he jumped $5,000 bail. Kerwin said Anderson was a licensed ship master and that as an employee of the liquor ring he had commanded vessels it operated.

THE SON OF TARZAN No. 15

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The task of lowering the boy's "grandmother" over the ship's side to a waiting canoe was rather difficult. The lad insisted on being always at her side. When at last she was safely settled in the bottom of the craft bearing them shoreward her grandson dropped catlike after her. So interested was he in seeing her comfortably disposed he failed to notice the package that slipped from his pocket into the sea.

It was quite dark when the boy and the old woman entered a rickety shack boasting the name "Hotel" and were given a back room on the second floor. Here a wave of homesickness overcame him, as he explained to his "grandmother." She could remain in Africa if she wished. As for him, his conscience demanded he return by the same steamer to England and his parents. To which "grandma" said nothing much, seeming to prefer sleep.

Having come to a decision, the lad felt a sense of relief from the worry that had haunted him for many sleepless nights, and when he closed his own eyes it was to dream of a happy reunion with those at home. . . . And as he dreamed, Fate, cruel and inexorable, crept stealthily upon him down the dark corridor of the squalid "hotel." Fate in the form of the crook, Condon, who had shadowed the lad's every move since they left the ship!

Cautiously the man approached the door; listened until the regular breathing inside assured him the inmates were asleep. Deftly he inserted a skeleton key, entered and bolted the door quietly behind him. The moon dimly lit the interior as he groped his way toward the bed. In the far corner of the room something moved—moved with such silent stealthiness that even the trained ears of the burglar failed to hear it.

EMORY INDEPENDENTS SPLIT OVER ELECTION

Discussion in the Independent student body of Emory University Tuesday night resulted in a split of its forces and creation of two separate organizations, each claiming the official title. More than 300 students will be affected by the move.

The division followed a meeting of the Independents to elect officers for the new year. When C. M. Stephenson was named president, 31 students seceded and formed their own organization, declaring they were the rightful and legal Independents and banishing the larger group, composed of the most part of members of the Campus Club, a non-fraternity social group.

Others elected by the Independents before the summary withdrawal of the secessionists included Ed Walthall, vice president, and Cecil Heffner, treasurer.

The revolt against the major party was due, according to Miller because of the "fraternal characteristics of the Campus Club and the unfair division of political plums among non-fraternity men."

Those involved in the affair are not affiliated with Greek letter fraternities, but the split was precipitated when members of the Campus Club are said to have combined to elect an independent outside the club but not favored by the dissenting group.
